FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE—

Impact of Korean Combat Lessons at the Infantry School

BY MAJ. GEN. G. S. MELOY, JR., USA
Commanding General, The Infantry Center, and Commandant, The Infantry School

THE Infantry Center is continuously analyzing and evaluating the lessons and experiences of the Korean conflict to determine their implication and application to Infantry doctrine and techniques.

Maj. Gen. Meloy

As a result of careful study of official battle reports and of the personal experiences that are found in quantity and quality among the Staff and Faculty of The Infantry School, we have reached a very reassuring conclusion. Our tactical doctrine is sound for this type of fighting.

This does not mean that The Infantry School is, in any way, resting on past laurels. We feel very strongly that we have a grave responsibility to the American Infantryman. This responsibility involves giving the American Infantryman the best leadership possible, and a diligent search for new and better ways for the Infantryman to fight. The Infantry must be kept progressive and modern as the key member of the Infantry-Artillery-Tank Team and be prepared to make any changes in doctrine that are brought about by mass destruction weapons. Our responsibility involves both tactical research and developing improved weapons, techniques, organization, and teaching methods.

While the Korean conflict has served to confirm the soundness of our basic small unit tactical doctrine, it has also served to highlight certain weaknesses in techniques. Perhaps the importance of technique has been the best lesson gleaned from the Korean fighting.

Some, but by no means all, of these weaknesses in technique will be discussed in the following paragraphs. These techniques are covered in manuals; it is their application that has been faulty. Our teaching methods apparently failed in some cases to get the point across to the prospective leaders—generally because of misplaced emphasis. Let us consider a few of the more noteworthy "lessons" in the light of the corrective measures we are taking at The Infantry School.

Terrain:

There are examples of military misfortunes in our Korean operations caused by failure to use terrain to good advantage. Terrain is the workbench on which

AF Loses 18,090 Officers; 10,203 Get RIF Treatment

The Air Force officer RIF program has resulted in accelerated release of 10,203 officers of whom 4278 asked voluntary separation, it was revealed at the Pentagon this week.

All together, the Air Force will lose 18,090 officers during the current fiscal year. Of this number, 7887 represent normal attrition.

The tabulation shows that 5925 officers were named for involuntary force outs to meet Reduction-in-Force requirements. However, up to 1000 of these may be saved as a result of reclamer by their commanders.

Of this number, some 2178 were pilots on flying status and 654 were observers on flying status.

Air Force officials confirmed that of the total group of 6592 picked for involuntary release (some of these finally went out voluntarily), 33 per cent were pilots and 9.9 per cent were observers.

It is recalled that Assistant Secretary H. Lee White, Air Force manpower chief, said it was the policy of the Air Force not to release essential officers, "particularly pilots and technicians."

Among the pilots picked for forced

All-Service Draft Is New Possibility

All of the Armed Forces—not just the Army—may be forced to use the draft during fiscal year 1955 to meet needs of a unique manpower situation.

Never before have the Uniformed Services maintained an approximately level strength of over 3,000,000 for longer than a year in the absence of hostilities.

That's a clear likelihood now. There will be numerous personnel ramifications as a result. One of them is certain renewal of the across-the-board Selective Service controversy.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service Chief, has argued for this repeatedly over the years. So has the Army.

The Navy and Air Force, on the other hand, have strenuously resisted all efforts to impose use of the draft to fulfill their manpower requirements.

The Marine Corps also has been reluctant to use the draft, but during the fighting in Korea was obliged to induct about 50,000 men to keep its strength up.

At one time during the hostilities, the Air Force and Navy, notably the former, came close to use of the draft, but escaped its need when then Assistant Defense Secretary Anna M. Rosenberg relaxed a ban and permitted these Services to enlist men previously tabbed for induction through Selective Service.

General Hershey protested and so did the Army.

The Air Force and Navy contend that the more technical aspect of their activities demand greater over-all specialization than in the Army and that consequently men are needed for longer than the two-year tours.

The Air Force and Navy consequently set four years as the minimum enlistment tour.

Defense officials freely concede that thousands of men were motivated to sign up for four years in the Air Force or Navy, rather than serving two years in the Army under the draft while fighting was in progress in Korea.

Many observers now predict that if the truce in Korea is not broken and if fighting doesn't start somewhere else in the world, the Air Force and Navy, soon to be confronted with a tremendous replacement need for the "non-career motivated"

DISCUSS POST EXCHANGES. Col. Cline J. Lampkin, left, Third Army Special Services Officer, Miss Pat Abernathy, and Maj. Cress Surface, both of the Department of the Army, Washington, D. Retail Group Rallies New Attack on PX's

Rallying from defeat, the American Retail Federation this week renewed its attack on Armed Forces Exchanges.

It served notice on Chairman Dewey Short of the Armed Services Committee that it is preparing another "analysis" of Exchange activities and asked the Committee to "reserve judgment for a few weeks" until it can complete it.

A similar attack last Spring was accompanied by a long report compiled for the Federation by a firm of hired investigators. The Hess Subcommittee found most of the charges baseless and concluded that the Service Exchanges are abiding by the 1949 agreement with Congress, that they are well run and that they are necessary for the morale of the Armed Forces. Mr. Short's full committee approved its subcommittee's report on 5 Aug.

No "Unlawful Act"

In its letter to Representative Short, the Federation protested that "There was absolutely no evidence and no showing by the Hess Subcommittee that retailing's investigators committed any unlawful act."

This probably referred to that portion of the Hess Report which stated, "There are 10 charges of sales without proper identification; that is, a green-colored exchange purchase card. The federation agent used a Reserve officer's identification card (color red) use of which is governed by the regulations."

The committee pointed out that "Regulations of the United States Army governing the use of Reserve officers' identification cards provide as follows: '1. a. These regulations govern the procurement, issue, disposition, and accountability of identification cards. (DD Form 2A (RES)) for personnel of the Reserve components of the Army. These cards are to be issued for identification only and will not be used as passes.'"

"Double Standard"

The Hess report then said: "The federation seems unconcerned with those unlawful acts. These cards are to be used for identification only and will not be used as passes. That places a strict obligation upon the person possessing the card. A double standard of conduct seems to be indicated with all the guilt on the sales clerk and none on the agent. Reserve officers of the United States have a privilege and a responsibility not to abuse that privilege, certainly not for hire or unlawfully."

Text of Letter

The complete text of the Federation's new letter to Chairman Short, under date of 10 Sept., is as follows:

"Dear Congressman Short:

"After rather extensive study of the 'Report on Armed Services Exchanges (PX's) 1953,' released last month by your Subcommittee on Defense Activities, we are still at a loss to account for the report's content. The document is so out-of-character with recognized congressional standards that we can only conclude that the Subcommittee staff charged with preparation of the report became obsessed with a completely prejudiced point of view.

"The Subcommittee's report is so charged with distortions, with baseless allegations and with conclusions that have no factual support, that a carefully documented analysis of the real facts and of retailing's historic position with respect to armed services exchanges is needed to set the record straight. We mean to prepare such an analysis and request that your Committee reserve judgment for a few weeks until we can complete this undertaking.

"In the meantime we will not be drawn into an arena of denunciations, but we do wish to state that:

"1. Retailing has always objected, and will continue to object, to the type of government competition with private industry represented by armed forces exchanges as they are presently operated.

"2. Retailing responded to the Philbin Subcommittee's admonishment to observe and report violations of the 1949 agreement. This fact evidently was overlooked in the Hess Subcommittee report.

"3. The report of our survey of 14 exchanges speaks for itself.

"4. Even the 'more vocal critics' among

Gen. Hull Goes To FEC; Gen. Bolte Named Vice CofS

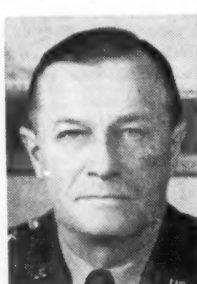

The shift of top Army generals, predicted in the 5 Sept. issue of THE JOURNAL, is under way.

Gen. Hull

President Eisenhower named General John E. Hull, Army Vice Chief of Staff, to be Far East Commander. He will leave for Tokyo about 1 Oct., and will assume his new command before 31 Oct., the date on which General Mark W. Clark will retire.

To succeed General Clark, Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens, acting on the recommendation of General Matthew B. Ridgway, this week designated General Charles L. Bolte, Commanding General U. S. Army Europe.

Gen. Bolte

No replacement was announced for General Bolte as THE JOURNAL went to press. The 5 Sept. article mentioned the possibility of a European assignment for Lt. Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe, Deputy Chief of Staff, Operations and Administration.

General Hull, 58, was graduated from Miami University at Oxford, Ohio, in 1917. He was appointed Vice Chief of Staff on 1 Aug. 1951.

General Bolte, also 58, was graduated from Armour Institute of Technology in 1917.

Both four-star generals are Infantry officers, as is General Ridgway.

Atom Subs Hail New Era Says Navy Sec'y, They Will Hunt Enemy Raiders In Depths

GROTON, CONN., 15 SEPT.

Against a dramatic backdrop provided by the olive drab hull of the world's first atomic submarine, the USS Nautilus, the keelplate for the second nuclear-powered ship of the U. S. Navy today was set in place here at the Electric Boat Division of the General Dynamics Corporation.

Construction of the nuclear submarine USS Sea Wolf began officially moments after Navy Secretary Robert B. Anderson initiated the keel plate and declared "the keel of the Sea Wolf to be well and truly laid." Rear Adm. Edward H. Harp, Jr., Navy Chief of Chaplains, pronounced the benediction.

Sec. Anderson

The keel-laying took place under cloudy skies immediately following an address by Secretary Anderson in which he declared that the Nautilus and Sea Wolf (spelled variously in Navy releases as one and two words) "presage a new era in navies and naval warfare."

"They open the door to many new practical uses and applications of submarines," the Navy Secretary declared, "and they portend a revolution of enormous significance in the propulsion of all ships."

The two nuclear-powered submarines, called by Mr. Anderson "the first devices ever invented by man which can circumnavigate the globe without refueling," were hailed as "the first true submersibles."

Mr. Anderson, warning that Russia could enter a war with six times as many submarines as Germany possessed at the outset of WWII, said that with the Nautilus and Sea Wolf, "for the first time in history the Navy will have the ideal vessel to send under the sea to combat the enemy submarines lurking in the depths."

His statement gave a clear indication that the primary role of the two submarines of the future will be as killer-ships.

Secretary Anderson said that in event of war "we must counter the threat of an enemy blockade with a blockade of our own, taking advantage of the remarkably favorable configuration of the Eurasian coastline, and utilizing every weapon and device at our disposal."

The Navy Secretary declared that "our strategic frontiers lie not along our own coastlines, but in the rimlands of Eurasia, and our war operations must be designed to keep them there."

He spoke before an audience which included Admiral Lynde D. McCormick, Supreme Allied Commander Atlantic and Commander-in-Chief Atlantic Fleet; Admiral Donald B. Duncan, Vice Chief of Naval Operations; Vice Adm. J. J. Balentine, Commander, Air Force, Atlantic Fleet, and Rear Adm. H. G. Rickover, who as chief of the Naval Reactor Branch of the Atomic Energy Commission's Reactor Development Division is the man most credited with pushing the atomic submarine program.

Another authority on nuclear propulsion of submarines who attended the ceremony was Rear Adm. Andrew I. McKee, USN-Ret., vice president of General Dynamics Corporation and Director of Research and Design.

In addition to Secretary Anderson, others who spoke at the keel-laying ceremonies included Governor John Lodge of Connecticut, former Army Secretary Frank Pace, Jr., now executive vice president of General Dynamics Corporation; President Ralph J. Cordiner of General Electric Company; Senior Vice President O. Pomeroy Robinson, Jr., of General Dynamics Corporation and International Vice President William G. Pendergast of the Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Iron Shipbuilders and Helpers of America, American Federation of Labor.

The great stress which Secretary Anderson placed on the importance of the submarine, particularly as a killer of enemy undersea marauders, won him hearty praise at the nearby submarine base at New London. At a luncheon which followed the keel-laying ceremonies, veteran Navy submariners expressed enthusiasm to reporters over the Secretary's hard-hitting address.

The Navy's 1954 ship construction program includes funds for only one submarine, a new attack ship. Consequently, submariners had expressed concern that the undersea ships were being slighted.

Secretary Anderson's speech at Groton undoubtedly will help offset these fears.

He concluded his address with an appeal for a "long-range coordinated shipbuilding and replacement policy."

Mr. Anderson said that "the ships, the aircraft, the guns which now form the material basis of our military power are gradually but surely losing the supremacy of their capabilities, as new and better weapons come on the scene."

"We must therefore allocate a portion of our resources each year to the replacement of our obsolescent machines of war," he said, "so that we make the transition from the old to the new at least reasonably smooth and continuous, reducing to a minimum the peaks and valleys of our procurement schedules."

His remarks are being interpreted as an indication that Navy authorities will fight hard for an increased shipbuilding effort in the fiscal year 1955 budget.

Coincidental with the keel-laying ceremonies, the Navy released the following information on the Sea Wolf:

The keel for the U.S.S. Nautilus, first nuclear-powered submarine in history, was laid by President Harry S. Truman, on June 14, 1952, in the shipyard of General Dynamics Corporation's Electric Boat Division, Groton, Connecticut.

Five weeks later, on July 19, Secretary of the Navy Dan A. Kimball announced that the contract for a second atomic submarine had also been assigned to the Electric Boat Division. It is the keel of this ship, the U.S.S. Sea Wolf, that is being laid September 15 alongside the Nautilus.

The Sea Wolf will be of the same general design as the Nautilus, but the nuclear power plant will be considerably different. Power for the Sea Wolf will derive from an intermediate neutron energy reactor and a liquid metal coolant as designed at the Knolls Atomic Power Laboratory of the General Electric Company, under contract to the Atomic Energy Commission.

The Nautilus will be equipped with a thermal reactor and a water coolant designed by Westinghouse.

Aboard both the Nautilus and the Sea Wolf, heavy shielding will be built around the reactor to protect the crews against dangerous radiation, and a monitoring system will be installed to sound alarms if radiation should arise.

All personnel on the Sea Wolf will carry pocket dosimeters which will be checked regularly to be sure that no one receives more than a tolerable radiation exposure. Moreover, electronic devices will shut off the nuclear power plant if anything should go

Liquor Policy In "Service Interests" Says Dr. Hannah; Will Answer Critics

Assistant Defense Secretary John A. Hannah, who as president of Michigan State College is also a renowned educator, said this week that it was he who approved the new Army-Air Force regulations for the sale of liquor, that the policy was "in the best interests of the military services," and that he would answer the criticism.

Dr. Hannah was asked about the liquor regulation, which authorizes sale of alcoholic beverages by the bottle and drink on Army and Air Force installations in the same manner as has been done at Navy and Marine Corps facilities, at a Pentagon press conference following his return from a trip to the Far East.

The regulation has stirred considerably controversy, notably among retail liquor dealers, the Women's Christian Temperance Union and various church organizations.

Dr. Hannah took cognizance of this criticism during his meeting with reporters. Asked to comment on the hot potato regulation, he did not attempt to avert the issue.

The Assistant Secretary said he made the decision to approve the uniform policy after concurring with military commanders that it would be advantageous to control and supervise sale and use of alcoholic beverages in wholesome surroundings on military posts, instead of forcing men to go elsewhere for liquor.

Dr. Hannah said that the proposed regulation was discussed with Chairman Leverett Saltenstall (R-Mass.) and Dewey Short (R-Mo.) of the Senate and House Armed Services Committees. He said they voiced no objection to the plan.

Dr. Hannah maintained that the retail liquor spokesmen are using the WCTU and church groups in their campaign against the liquor sale authorization.

He emphasized that, having approved the regulation, he now has no intention of backing down on the decision, notwithstanding the criticism.

The fact that Dr. Hannah will answer the certain criticism on Capitol Hill next year and that the matter was discussed in advance with the Armed Services Committee chairmen are indications that the regulation will be upheld.

Dr. Hannah stressed that he made the decision as a person who has dedicated a large part of his adult life to the education and welfare of young men and women. He said repeatedly that the primary criterion he used was that the decision would be "in the best interests of the military services."

That argument will be difficult to defeat, especially when presented by such a "non-partisan" as the Assistant Defense Secretary.

wrong with the equipment.

A land-based prototype of power plant for the Sea Wolf is under construction at General Electric's installation in West Milton, New York.

The estimated cost to the Navy for the Sea Wolf construction is $32,700,000, a figure which does not include AEC's expenditure for development of the nuclear portion of the plant which will propel the ship.

The Navy's construction cost for the Nautilus was estimated at $29,000,000. This figure did not include cost to the AEC for the power plant.

The Sea Wolf will have operating characteristics similar to those of the Nautilus. It will be able to operate at a submerged speed in excess of 20 knots, and will be able to remain submerged for long periods without recourse to a "snorkel" breathing tube. Its cruising range will be comparable to that of the Nautilus, and considerably in excess of that of present fleet-type submarines.

Cost of the Sea Wolf is considered comparable to costs of other submarines now being built for the Navy. The average cost for the Tang class is $16,500,000 per vessel. Research and development connected with the building of nuclear submarines is responsible for their greater cost.

The Sea Wolf will be the third U.S. submarine of that name. The first one was authorized early in 1909. Subsequently her name was changed to H-1. She was lost at sea on March 24, 1920. The second Sea Wolf was commissioned on December 1, 1939, and turned in an outstanding record in the course of 15 patrols through the western Pacific during World War II. During her short life she sank approximately 110,000 tons of enemy shipping. Her first skipper was "Lieutenant Commander (now Rear Admiral) Frederick W. Warder, USN, who commanded her for seven wartime patrols, the first starting from Manila on December 8, 1941.

Warder was replaced in November 1942

by "Commander Royce L. Gross, who later retired with the rank of Rear Admiral. Under Gross's command, the Sea Wolf continued her mauling of the enemy on seven more patrols. Gross, who is now inspection, test and trials manager at the Electric Boat Division, turned the Sea Wolf over to Lieutenant Commander A. L. Boutin in September 1944, and the ship was lost about a month later on her fifteenth patrol while in the Admiralty Islands.

—Both were present at the keel-laying this week.

Delay Promotion Boards

Army authorities said late this week that General Matthew B. Ridgway, Chief of Staff, has yet to give his approval to temporary officer promotion plans.

Announcement of convening dates for boards and zones of consideration must await endorsement of plans by the Chief of Staff.

This means there is little chance of selection proceedings getting underway before mid-October, but quick action can be anticipated after General Ridgway has been briefed.

Plans are all set and pertinent records are reported in good order.

It may be, however, that General Ridgway will want to make certain modifications in selection and promotion procedures. This could result in additional delays.

Commands Women Marines

Maj. Barbara Bishop, on duty at Pearl Harbor, will report to Camp Lejeune, N. C., as relief for Maj. Mary J. Elder, former Commanding Officer of the Woman Marine Company there.

She will succeed Capt. Elaine Carvell who has been acting CO since Major Elder returned to civilian life.

Admiral Joy was welcomed also by Brig. Gen. Peter C. Hains 8d, Second Army Chief of Staff, and Col. F. M. Harris, Post Commander. The visit was to return an earlier one made by General Parks to the Naval Academy.

Regular AF Officers Now Can Ask Release

Regular Air Force officers who want to resign from the Service now can submit their applications.

They must have at least three years' active service since appointment in the Regular Establishment. If the applicant does not have a total of eight years' service, active or inactive, he must agree to accept appointment in the Air Force Reserve.

THE JOURNAL late this week was able to obtain the complete text of the regulation change, AFR 36-12B, which is published herewith.

The Air Force Secretary, the regulation states, may reject the application of Regular officers who occupy a key position for which a trained replacement is not available, who possess a scarce skill and are performing duty in that skill, or who are under orders for overseas service or who have not completed at least 12 months' service since arrival overseas.

Unqualified resignations can be asked on three grounds—Hardship, National Health, Safety or Interest, and Unconditional.

The Unconditional classification includes officers who deem that their application is "appropriate."

Following is the complete text of the official Air Force statement:

2. POLICY:

b. Acceptance—Normally, a resignation or an application for honorable discharge will be accepted. However, the Secretary of the Air Force may refuse to accept a resignation or an application for honorable discharge:

(8) In any other instance in which a determination has been made that the best interest of the Air Force requires retention of the officer in the military service, that is:

(a) When the officer is deemed to be occupying a key position for which a trained replacement is not available.

(b) When the officer possesses a scarce skill and is performing duty in that skill.

(c) When the officer is under orders for overseas service or is assigned overseas and has not completed 12 months' service since arrival overseas.

5. UNQUALIFIED RESIGNATION:

a. General—An officer may tender his resignation when any of the conditions outlined in b, c, or d below exist, except as indicated in (1) and (2) below. Each resignation will contain a complete statement of the reasons for which submitted and, when appropriate, will have appended thereto documentary evidence tending to substantiate any of the given reasons. Medical, dental, and veterinary officers in priorities I, II, III, and IV, as outlined in AFR 36-52, whose resignations are accepted and whose discharge is effective prior to completion of the periods of service required by AFR 36-52 may be obligated for further involuntary active service under the Act, 9 September 1950 (64 Stat. 826; 50 U.S.C. App. 454) (contained in AFBul 40, 1950), as amended by P. L. 84, 83rd Congress (contained in AFBul 9, 1953). Wherever there is any reference in this paragraph to the completion of a total of 8 years' service, the officer will be credited with all services, both active and inactive, performed in any capacity, which is creditable in the computation of the basic pay of a commissioned officer.

(1) An officer who has departed his last duty base in the zone of Interior (base of assignment prior to movement to port of embarkation) en route to an overseas destination may tender his resignation under this paragraph ONLY when hardship conditions as outlined in b below have arisen which did not exist prior to such departure.

(2) An officer who is temporarily in the zone of Interior from an overseas major air command may tender his resignation under this paragraph ONLY when hardship conditions as outlined in b below exist.

b. Hardship—An officer may tender his resignation when his retention in the service is causing undue hardship either to himself or to members of his family subject to the service criteria outlined in (1) through (4) below. An officer who tenders his resignation by reason of undue hardship will attach thereto documentary evidence in the form of letters, telegrams, or affidavits (and financial statements, where pertinent), clearly establishing that he or his family is undergoing hardships greater than those normally experienced by members or families of members of the military service; the hardship is not of a temporary nature; the conditions cannot be alleviated by any other means except by his separation from the service; and upon separation from the service he will be able to eliminate or materially alleviate the condition.

(1) A Regular officer who has not completed a total of 8 years' service may tender his resignation only contingent upon his accepting appointment as a Reserve of the Air Force.

(2) A Regular officer who has completed a total of 8 years' service may tender his resignation. He may at the same time request appointment as a Reserve of the Air Force.

(3) An officer, other than a Regular officer, who has completed a total of 3 years' service may either tender his resignation or request release from active duty under section IV, AFR 36-22, 1 July 1953.

(4) An officer, other than a Regular officer, who has not completed a total of 3 years' service may NOT tender his resignation but may request release from active duty under section IV, AFR 36-22.

c. National Health, Safety, or Interest—Except as indicated in a above and subject to the service obligations outlined in (1) through (4) below, an officer may tender his resignation under this paragraph whenever he can definitely establish that he can render more valuable service to the Nation in a civilian capacity. An officer who tenders his resignation under this paragraph will attach thereto affidavits, letters, or other documentary evidence from responsible officials of the firm, corporation, or agency clearly establishing the need for the services of the applicant. Applications will be approved only when it can be determined that the separation of the officer is essential from a national point of view and that the application is based on national interest and not on the personal desire and interest of the officer.

(1) A Regular officer who has not completed a total of 8 years' service may tender his resignation ONLY contingent upon his accepting appointment as a Reserve of the Air Force.

(2) A Regular officer who has completed a total of 8 years' service may tender his resignation. He may at the same time request appointment as a Reserve of the Air Force.

(3) An officer, other than a Regular officer, who has completed a total of 3 years' service may either tender his resignation or request release from active duty under section III, AFR 36-22, 1 July 1953.

(4) An officer, other than a Regular officer, who has not completed a total of 3 years' service may NOT tender his resignation but may request release from active duty under section III, AFR 36-22.

d. Unconditional—Except as indicated in a above, an officer may tender his unconditional resignation whenever he considers such action appropriate. The resignation will contain a complete statement of the reasons for which submitted and when appropriate will have appended thereto available documentary evidence tending to substantiate any of the given reasons. Subject to the exceptions contained in paragraph 2, unconditional resignations normally will be accepted when all of the conditions outlined below, applicable to the component of the officer concerned, are met:

(1) Regular Officer:
(a) Has completed 3 years of active service (Please turn to Page 77)

UNITED STATES ARMY

Gen. Newman to Take Over as Ft. Benning DCO

Brig. Gen. Aubrey S. Newman will assume duties 21 Sept. as the deputy Ft. Benning commander, Maj. Gen. G. S. Meley, jr., Infantry Center commander has announced.

General Newman has served as assistant commander of the 82d Airborne Division at Ft. Bragg, N. C., since July, 1952. He was commissioned a second lieutenant of Infantry following his graduation in 1925 from the U. S. Military Academy.

General Newman served in the Pacific campaigns during World War II, beginning his active combat career in Hawaii and moving across the Pacific to Leyte.

Serving as the 24th Infantry Division's chief of staff and as regimental commander of the 34th Infantry, Gen. Newman moved with his division from Hawaii to Australia. He then fought in the campaigns in New Guinea and the Philippines, including the amphibious invasion of Leyte, where he commanded one of the initial assault regiments.

Since World War II, Gen. Newman's assignments have been primarily with airborne troops.

Col. Bernier To Lecture

Col. Joseph L. Bernier, DC, USA, Chief of the Dental and Oral Pathology Section of the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology, will lecture on "Facial Pain and Its Importance In Diagnosis" before the Associated Dental Societies of the State of New York and the Hudson County Dental Society in New York City on 2 Oct.

Colonel Bernier also will preside at a session on "Classification of Periodontal Diseases" at the three day annual meeting of the American Dental Association in Cleveland, Ohio, 28-30 Sept.

LT. COL. EDWIN W. RICHARDSON (left), U. S. Military Academy's newly assigned Public Information Officer, was awarded the Legion of Merit 15 Sept. by Maj. Gen. Frederick A. Irving, Superintendent of the Academy. The award was in recognition of Colonel Richardson's service in Korea as a member of the Korean Military Advisory Group.

Col. Wooten Named Deputy C of S X Corps in Korea

Col. Sidney C. Wooten, USA, has been appointed Deputy Chief of Staff of X Corps (Group), in Korea.

Colonel Wooten has just arrived from the States, where he served in the Office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Colonel Milton H. Clark has recently been assigned as X Corps (Group) Ordnance Officer. His last assignment in the States was at Sandia Base in Albuquerque, N. M.

Major Harold B. Roberts has been assigned as Aide-de-camp to Lt. Gen. Reuben E. Jenkins, X Corps (Group) Commander. Prior to joining the X Corps (Group), he was with the General at IX US Corps, also in Korea.

Chaplain (1st Lt.) William J. Finley has been assigned as Chaplain with the 196th Field Artillery Battalion.

Maj. Gen. George I. Back, Chief Signal Officer, officially sealed the cornerstone of the Signal School's new Administration Building, an ultra-modern two-story structure with an Open Air Amphitheatre at formal ceremonies at Ft. Monmouth, N. J., on 10 Sept.

With the turning over of the new building to the Post, construction is near completion of three wings of The Signal School to train wire and radio students in the Enlisted Department. Col. Alfred H. Davidson, jr., District Engineer of the New York District, turned the building over to Maj. Gen. K. B. Lawton, Post commander, during the ceremonies.

The Administration Building, called Myer Hall, which is to open shortly, according to Post officials, is 206 feet long, 185 feet wide on the west end, with two wings each 62 feet wide. The area is on the Avenue of Memories near the West Gate.

The building will be staffed by administrative, registrar, academic and facilities sections, plus the office of the Director of the Enlisted Department. Eventually, Myer Hall will include the Signal Corps Museum, the Signal School's Technical Library, a Post Exchange Cafeteria and the Signal Equipment Demonstrator, used for orientations to new students.

FIRST WOMAN to receive a full-dress honor guard ceremony in Korea is Lt. Col. Ruby G. Bradley, AN, USA, who is shown as she was awarded the First Oak Leaf Cluster to the Legion of Merit by Eighth Army Commander, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor. Colonel Bradley, who was a prisoner of war of the Japanese for 37 months in World War II, volunteered to go to Korea with the 171st Evacuation Hospital a month after hostilities began. She subsequently served as Chief Nurse of the Eighth Army. Colonel Bradley recently reported at Ft. McPherson, Ga., to become Chief Nurse of the Third Army.

25th Not Only Division Given Nickname Sanction

The 25th Infantry "Tropic Lightning" Division, commanded during the early part of World War II by General J. Lawton Collins, former Army Chief of Staff, was not given special treatment recently when it was accorded official sanction to use the nickname as part of the division designation.

Following is a complete list of the divisions which have had their nicknames approved by the Department of the Army, as made available to THE JOURNAL this week by Pentagon authorities:

7th Armored Division (Lucky Seventh)
11th Airborne Division (Angels)
7th Infantry (Bayonet) Division
29th (Blue and Gray) Infantry Division
79th (Cross of Lorraine) Infantry Division
31st Infantry (Dixie) Division
2d (Indianhead) Infantry Division
30th Infantry Division (Old Hickory)
1st Armored Division (Old Ironsides)
34th (Red Bull) Infantry Division
6th Infantry Division (Sight-Seeing Sixth)
3d Armored Division (Spearhead)
6th Armored Division (The Super Sixth)
47th (Viking) Infantry Division

MICROWAVE

In 1931, International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation became the world pioneer—the first to beam man's voice through space by microwave. Today microwave has become the fastest growing communications system for spanning mountains, swamps, rivers and other natural barriers without costly wire lines—a system that is virtually immune to storm damage. And today IT&T is still the recognized leader, with its greatly advanced “pulse time multiplex” method of microwave transmission. If your company is planning to set up, expand or replace its own cross-country communication system, look first to PTM microwave. This versatile, flexible, new method provides for multiple speech channels, unattended telegraph, telemetering, remote control and other signaling. PTM microwave is available through Federal Telephone and Radio Company, a Division of IT&T.

IT&T engineers successfully demonstrate first voice transmission by microwave, Calais to Dover, March 31, 1931.

U. S. NAVY & MARINE CORPS

Navy Announces New Air Arm Reductions

The Navy disclosed this week that it is making a further slash in plane procurement during the current fiscal year, cutting 91 more combat aircraft from its previously approved program.

Secretary of the Navy Robert B. Anderson had revealed earlier that the '54 program would buy 700 less planes than had been proposed under the Truman budget. The new cut means that the Navy will procure approximately 1,209 new planes as opposed to 2,000 under the budget of the former administration.

The Navy said the revised program "has been approved by the Department of Defense." The cuts will be made in fighter aircraft of the McDonnell F3H design.

At the same time, the Navy said procurement of Douglas A2D attack aircraft also "is being temporarily halted because of unfavorable developments in the acceptance tests of the twin-barreled turbo-prop engine." An earlier model plane, the Douglas AD, will be procured in its stead.

The Navy said the cuts will not mean that over-all strength of Naval aviation will be changed, but "the number of modern aircraft will be temporarily fewer."

SecNav Visits USNA

Secretary of the Navy Robert B. Anderson visited the U. S. Naval Academy this week and reviewed the Brigade of 3,620 Midshipmen in the first full-dress parade of the new academic year.

Later, Mr. Anderson observed the varsity football team in a scrimmage session, following which he met and talked with members of the squad in the locker room of Macdonough Hall.

He was accompanied by his aide, Capt. Reynold D. Hogle, USN, and a party of four.

THE MARINE AND HIS RIFLE

A Marine and his rifle soon will become almost inseparable companions under a new policy established by General Lemuel C. Shepherd, jr., Marine Corps Commandant.

In the future, the Marine's rifle will go with him when he transfers to another unit on a base where he already is serving, or when he travels from one Marine Corps base to another as part of an organized troop draft. He also will take his M-1 along on any trip which he makes solely in government conveyances and, when deemed necessary "for the preservation of combat readiness," he may even be authorized to carry the rifle with him on trains, busses, planes, or in his auto.

Marine Corps Retires 47 Staff Non-Coms

The Marine Corps has announced the retirement of 47 Staff NCO's, including 21 Master Sergeants and one Sergeant Major.

Placed on the temporary disability retired list were Master Sergeants Jay C. Alexander and Clinton R. Mackie; Technical Sergeants George M. King and Josie Pracht, and Staff Sergeants Edward Everett Cooper, Richard J. Dombrowski, Carroll R. Dovell, Carl E. Fletcher, John B. Greer, jr., William H. Heishman, Harry S. Shannahan, Philip J. Soave, Dewey H. West, Calvin A. Wilkerson, and Holly L. Williams.

Placed on the permanent retired list was S/Sgt Lindsey R. Dollens.

Seven were Staff Sergeants transferred from the temporary disability list to the permanent disability list. They are: Richard Allen Bristow, Irvin Buchalter, Rugierre Furamanta Caglioti, John Robert Cowan, jr., George W. McDuffie, Gordon Duane McNeil and Edward Eugene Price.

Placed on the Fleet Marine Corps Reserve List were Master Sergeants Barney A. Cogsdell, Ramon A. Combs, Frank E. Deyhle, Garrett E. Flander, Max R. Kelly, Eric Joneson, Julius C. Kilgore, Ulysses G. Knox, jr., Ervin E. LaPlante, William C. Moore, Hansel Ray, John J. Russell, Elsvard A. Turner, Burl Wilson, and Technical Sergeants Ewald O. Harringer, Paul R. Mathias, and Lynn D. Sloat.

Seven were placed on the Fleet Marine Corps Reserve Retired List: Sergeant Major Gerald A. Newhouse, Master Sergeants Eugene C. Jones, Gus Frederick Koenig, John Joseph Maguire, Coma May, Frank Rosenberg and Technical Sergeant Lawrence Neely.

U. S. To Stay on Okinawa Indefinitely, Says Senator

That Americans will be on Okinawa for at least three generations is the personal opinion of United States Senate Majority Leader, William F. Knowland, who visited Okinawa 4-5 Sept. during his current tour of U. S. installations in the Far East.

His opinion was expressed in answer to questions posed by prominent Okinawans at a conference in the office of Maj. Gen. David A. D. Ogden, Commanding General, Ryukyus Command and Deputy Governor of the Ryukyu Islands.

The Senator emphasized that he could not speak for the Government, but that his personal opinion was that U. S. Forces would remain on Okinawa "beyond our time, our sons' time, and our grandsons' time."

It was Senator Knowland's third visit to the island base since 1946. He commented several times on the remarkable progress he has noted since his last two visits there, both in the military and civilian construction programs and in the economic advancement of the island.

Marine Corps Adds New Uniform Regulations

Two groups of Marine officers will be required to purchase dress uniforms (either dress blues, white dress or, in some instances, both) within the next six months.

The new requirement was announced by HQMC this week along with several other changes being made in Marine Corps uniform regulations.

Those to be required to buy dress uniforms are all male temporary officers who hold permanent enlisted rank and all male USMCR officers on extended active duty in excess of three years. They have been given until 9 Nov. 1953 to buy dress blues and until 1 April 1954 to buy white dress uniforms.

Officers Not Affected

Headquarters said, however, that the new ruling does not apply to officers attached to or under orders to FMF units in the field outside the continental U. S., or to Reserve officers on EAD in excess of three years who are to be released during fiscal '54.

Officers attached to all posts and stations and FMF units not in the field. Headquarters said, "are required to possess by the dates specified . . . the blue uniform, the white uniform, or both, dependent upon climatic conditions."

Also adopted was a standard raincoat cover for wear by male Marines as an optional item. It will be of green Nylon-Rayon material, and will be available at Marine Corps exchanges in the near future.

At the same time, the full belt on the officer's topcoat and the enlisted man's overcoat was eliminated. In its place, will be a half belt. Officers are required to have their coats so modified by 1 Nov., and have been authorized "at their own expense" to forward their topcoat to the Officer's Uniform Shop, Marine Corps Depot of Supplies, Philadelphia, for the modification.

Cite Infractions

Two infractions of the uniform regulations also were noted. Male officers were admonished to discontinue purchase of dress white uniforms made of "Palm Beach" material. This material is unauthorized, Headquarters said, and officers who already have such uniforms will not be permitted to wear them after 1 July 1955.

The other infraction involved dress and service coats worn by officers and enlisted men. Headquarters said General Shepherd has noted on recent inspection trips that these coats are either being manufactured or altered so that the overlap in the back vent and in the front closure is not sufficient. It was pointed out that modifications to eliminate the fullness and slight flare in the skirt of the coat "are prohibited."

Navy Confirms Plans To Change Forrestal Deck

The Navy this week confirmed a JOURNAL article written a year and one-half ago, with the announcement that it is redesigning the flight deck and operating arrangements of the USS Forrestal.

More than three months before construction was started on the first 60,000-ton carrier—on 29 Mar. 1952—THE JOURNAL reported "drawing board plans for the Navy's biggest projected aircraft carrier, the USS Forrestal, whose keel is scheduled to be laid this summer; may have to be scrapped in favor of a new flight deck design."

The article pointed out that the then-new steam catapult was being studied and tested by the Navy for possible use aboard the ship and that, if adopted, "it would mean that the flight deck of the big carrier could be reduced and its shape simplified."

Save Three Million

This week the Navy said the changed flight deck plans, which also will apply to the second and third ships of this class, resulted from a desire to fully exploit the capabilities of the steam catapult and to make use of the new angled landing deck. The redesign is expected to result in a savings of at least three million dollars in the cost of the Forrestal.

At the time of the JOURNAL disclosure, the Navy guardedly admitted that it was making tests with the new steam catapult but said no decision had been made about its possible installation aboard the carrier.

One of the major changes in the deck design will be the installation of a fixed island structure. Previously, it had been planned to make the carrier a true flush deck so as to present an unobstructed surface for landings and take-offs.

Will Simplify Plans

The new angled deck, which has been tested successfully aboard the USS Antietam, now obviates the need for a flush deck since it is far enough removed from the island structure to provide an unobstructed landing strip even with the island in place.

The Navy said the fixed island structure will greatly improve and simplify the electronics and communications installations, and the facilities for ship and aircraft control.

Other changes include the rearrangement of the catapults and elevators to provide better servicing of the flight deck and hangar spaces and to remove certain interferences in catapult operations which were inherent in the original design. "Space below the flight deck will be simplified by the removal of activities and equipment to spaces in the island," the Navy said.

It was noted that the completion date of the Forrestal will not be delayed as a result of the change in deck design. She is expected to be launched next March.

Marine LDO Board In Session

A Marine Corps selection board is now meeting to name 40 men for LDO appointments.

The board, headed by Col. Gould P. Groves, was convened on 8 Sept. Other members are Lieutenant Colonels Edwin C. Godbold, Paul B. McNicol, Hoyle R. Barr, Franz C. Heckman, Majors John A. Gibson, Jr., James C. Stanfield, Woodrow B. Lewis and Charles W. Fitzmaurice. The Recorder is 2d Lt. Eldon C. Anderson.

Those being considered by the board are temporary officers, warrant officers and senior NCO's.

Service Club Facilities For Airmen Discussed

Service Club directors of the Southeastern Conference met at Maxwell AFB, Ala., last week to discuss means of improving Service club facilities for airmen.

Lt. Gen. Laurence S. Kuter, Air University Commander, opened the three-day conference by terming the Service Club a principal builder of a "healthy mental attitude of devotion to serve and physical well-being."

General Kuter urged Service Club leaders to regard their jobs as being of the utmost importance.

Approximately 50 Service Club officers, directors and hostesses representing Air Force installations throughout the Southeastern states attended.

Col. Peter Agnell, Chief of Air Force Special Services, was conference leader.

The average Air Force master sergeant has served a fourth of a year longer than the average lieutenant colonel. Mr. Average Top-Grader is 35.5 years old and has 12.6 years duty in the Air Force. Mr. Average Lt. Col. is 38.9 years old and has 12.3 years' service. General Thomas D. White, Vice Chief of Staff, said this week that commanders should use the maturity and experience of the master sergeants "to much better advantage than we have in the past."

Sq. of L-20s Test Feeder Evac. System With MATS

The Seventh Liaison Squadron of TAC's Eighteenth Air Force, stationed at Donaldson AFB, S. C., is participating in a medical test being conducted at Andrews AFB, Md.

Five of the unit's L-20 Beavers are at Andrews to provide a "feeder" line medical evacuation system between Military Air Transport Service terminal points and the farther inland hospitals scattered along the Eastern Seaboard in several states.

Six pilots and a detachment of airmen are assigned to the project, which is designed to determine the feasibility of initiating such a system. The tests were begun in July and will continue throughout this year. Pilots have logged over 200 hours in the flights which have carried patients to many service hospitals.

The detachment flight commander is 1st Lt. Robert S. Burton. The Seventh Liaison Squadron is commanded by Maj. Kelton M. Farris.

Col. Wright Wins Ph.D.

Lt. Col. Dalton H. Wright is the first member of the U. S. Air Force's Air Research and Development Command to obtain a Doctorate of Philosophy degree under the Air Force's educational program, "Operation Bootstrap," according to an announcement by Air Research and Development Command Headquarters in Baltimore, Md.

Col. Wright, assigned to applied research work in mathematical statistics at the Mathematics Research Laboratory, Wright Air Development Center, Dayton, Ohio, recently completed requirements for his Ph.D. at George Washington University, Washington, D. C. Under this Air Force educational program, Colonel Wright was permitted to return to the university to complete his final semester's work. His Ph.D. thesis was based on mathematical calculations used to determine aircraft "kill" probability with various rapid-firing guns.

Vet Air War College Graduate

Col. Robert R. Miller, USAF (VC), recently graduated from the Air War College, Air University, Maxwell AFB, Ala.

Colonel Miller, first veterinary officer to attend the Air War College, was the Veterinary Inspector General for the Air Force prior to attendance. His new assignment is at Headquarters Air Defense Command, Colorado Springs, Colo., as the Command Veterinarian.

COL. ALDRO LINGARD, Chief of Automatic Flight Controls, Armament Lab, explains new omnirange performance and landing controls of Sperry's new Beam Guidance system to Lt. Gen. Don L. Putt, Commanding General, Air Research and Development Command, and Maj. Gen. Al Boyd, WADC.

Posthumous Awards

Posthumous awards of the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal with four Oak Leaf Clusters were presented recently to Mrs. Janes Strother, wife of the late Captain Strother, by Col. Robert B. Davenport, commander of Goodfellow AFB, Tex.

Captain Strother was killed last May in a routine training flight with a student pilot. Mrs. Strother lives at 1225 South Harrison Street, San Angelo, Tex.

Remove Graduation Peril For AF ROTC Students

Graduation from college of hundreds of Air Force ROTC students, which had been in peril because of cutback policies, was assured this week.

Assistant Defense Secretary John A. Hannah said that all college seniors in the ROTC program of the Air Force would be permitted to remain in the program—not just those who sign up for flying training as previously announced. Many colleges give credit for ROTC training in two-year allotments, that is for completion of the basic course (freshman and sophomore) and completion of the advanced course (junior and senior.)

When the order was issued recently to restrict advanced training to those who sign up for flying, plus some additional specialists such as engineers, there was considerable concern on campuses throughout the country.

Now, Dr. Hannah states that the commitments will be kept with all seniors. Those who sign up for flying will be commissioned upon graduation and called to duty. Some of the others will be called, "but not very many." They will serve as Reserve officers on active duty.

The remainder will receive a Certificate of Completion and will go on active duty as airmen with the initial rank of basic airman. They will serve two years on active duty. At the end of this time, said Dr. Hannah, they will receive a commission in the Air Force Reserve.

Named ATRC Finance Chief

Col. Joe C. Stancook, formerly assigned to the Air Force Finance Center in Denver, Colo., has assumed duties at Air Training Command Headquarters, Scott AFB, Ill., as director of finance.

In his new assignment, Colonel Stancook will supervise the pay and allowances of nearly one-third of the manpower of the entire Air Force. The training Command has 43 bases scattered all over the United States.

Colonel Stancook was commissioned in 1935 upon graduation from the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., where he captained the football team in 1934.

The Colonel is married to the former Margaret Kessner. They have three children. The Stancooks live in quarters at Scott AFB, Ill.

Central ADF Changes

Three major command changes were recently effected in the Central Air Defense Force. Lt. Col. Michael J. Quirk, former TAC Inspector at Hqs. CADF in Kansas City, has been assigned as commander of the 87th Fighter-Interceptor Squadron, Sioux City, Ia., replacing Lt. Col. William P. Benedict. Col. Benedict was named commander of the 54th FIS, Rapid City, S. D. Replacing Colonel Quirk at CADF was Lt. Col. Paul Imig, former 54th FIS Commander.

AF Leaders Seek 20,000 More for Wing Strength

Air Force leaders are urging the Defense Department to raise current manpower ceilings, possibly by 20,000, to match unexpected progress toward achievement of the "interim" goal of 120 combat-ready wings.

This was revealed at a Pentagon press conference this week by Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson and Air Force Secretary Harold E. Talbott. The conference was called to clarify details concerning a cut-back in engine production which will save from $400 to $500 million, some of it in the current fiscal year and the rest in later fiscal years.

Both Secretaries insisted that neither the engine contract cancellations nor the aircraft cancellations previously announced, will delay the buildup of the Air Force.

They stated during the conference that the "interim" 120-wing objective would be achieved "many, many months" ahead of the original target date of the end of fiscal year 1956.

A JOURNAL reporter asked Mr. Wilson if this accelerated buildup pace would mean approval of additional men for the Air Force above the current fiscal year end strength of 960,000.

The Truman Administration had asked for an Air Force of 1,061,000 by next 30 June.

Mr. Wilson showed little enthusiasm for an increase in Air Force manpower, but Secretary Talbott observed that this is a matter about which there is currently some argument between the Air Force and the Defense Department.

Reporters jokingly asked Mr. Talbott who was arguing most. The Air Force Secretary responded that he must do most of the arguing in such situations. "Mr. Wilson doesn't have to," he observed.

Col. Olmsted ATRC JA

Col. Joel B. Olmsted, Staff Judge Advocate for the Crew Training Air Force with headquarters at Randolph AFB, Tex., has been appointed Judge Advocate at Headquarters, ATRC, Scott AFB, Ill.

In his new post, the Colonel will administer Judge Advocate activities at more than 40 bases which comprise the Crew Training Air Force, Flying Training Air Force and Technical Training Air Force.

"The Exchanges are self-supporting. They pay their own way. They pay Federal taxes. The only beneficiaries are the enlisted men and women for whom recreational facilities are purchased with the profits."—REPORT OF HESS SUBCOMMITTEE.

New Era in Sea Power. The laying of the keel of the atomic-powered submarine Sea Wolf this week at the yards of the Electric Boat Division marks a long stride forward into an almost unlimited field of under-sea warfare. The fact that in the immediately adjoining ship-way the USS Nautilus, the first atom-powered submarine, is already far along in construction, emphasizes the importance the Navy places in this new type.

Secretary of the Navy Anderson pointed out that these are the first true submersibles; they will be able to travel under water for thousands of miles at better than 20 knots. As a counter-weapon for Russia's vast and growing fleet of modern German-type submarines, the atom-sub, present and future, will be ideal. As an offensive weapon, capable of launching guided missiles, with conventional or atomic warheads, from the very shore-line of an enemy's homeland, she is fearsome. And the day cannot be too far distant when she will function as an undersea aircraft carrier for planes equipped with the new hydroski principle such as is now used on the Convair-built Sea Dart XF2Y-1.

The lesson in the new submarine and the era it opens up was set forth by Secretary Anderson in his address at the keel-laying ceremony. It applies with equal vigor to all of the Armed Services. It should be heeded by Congress and the administration. He said:

"The ships, the aircraft, the guns which now form the material basis of our military power are gradually but surely losing the supremacy of their capabilities, as new and better weapons come to the scene. We must therefore allocate a portion of our resources each year to the replacement of our obsolescent machines of war, so that we make the transition from the old to the new at least reasonably smooth and continuous, reducing to a minimum the peaks and valleys of our procurement schedules."

Top Defense Team. Now that former U. S. Senator Frederick A. Seaton has taken office, the newly authorized nine Assistant Secretaries of Defense are operating as a team. Their appointment came about as the result of President Eisenhower's reorganization of the Department of Defense centralizing more power in the hands of the Secretary of Defense. Statutory boards and staff agencies were abolished and their powers vested in the Secretary who now allocates their functions to his new assistants.

It is Secretary Wilson's wish that these men set policies and assist the various branches of the Armed Services in carrying out their functions. Assistant Defense Secretary Charles S. Thomas pointed out last week that the new Defense Department set-up will be taken out of "operations" and confined to policy-making functions. This is somewhat similar to the organization of the General Motors Corporation, of which Secretary Wilson was formerly president. There the Vice Presidents, organized along functional lines—sales, engineering, etc.—set down general policies, but do not interfere with the operation of member companies, such as Buick, Chevrolet, etc. If the head of one of the member companies has troubles in engineering, for example, he can go to the vice president in charge of engineering and get assistance from the highest level.

It is a new experiment in government, certainly in defense, organization. With Mr. Wilson's background, it may be expected to provide not only coordination but also genuine assistance to various branches and bureaus of the Armed Services.

SATURDAY, 19 SEPTEMBER 1953

Pecking at the Services. Anyone who read the thorough-going report of the Hess Subcommittee on last Spring's complaints against the Post Exchanges will not take too seriously the renewed squawk from the American Retail Federation.

The fact is, the Federation must still be smarting from the rap on the knuckles administered by the Hess Report. That Report called the charges "loose and reckless," pointed out that in getting so-called evidence against the Exchanges the Federation's hired agents had used questionable methods (it even referred to "unlawful acts"), and gave the Service Exchanges a clean bill of health.

Yet the ARF complaint contains one bit of logic that portends future trouble. In its letter to Representative Dewey Short, Chairman of the Armed Services Committee, the Federation characterizes the report of the Subcommittee as "out-of-character with recognized Congressional standards." Therein lies the rub. The Hess Subcommittee showed a rare quality: it considered the needs of the Services! It viewed the problem "with grave concern for the welfare of the Serviceman"; it took the stand that "servicemen and women should not be asked to bear all the burdens with none of the benefits." That is probably what the ARF considered "out-of-character," for few other committees have shown such concern. The Appropriations Committee, for example, slashed the commissaries, limited transportation of household goods, curtailed promotion, and otherwise struck at Service morale with little consideration for the personnel involved.

There will be other attacks by the ARF and similar organizations. There will also be sympathetic ears in Congress. But the impartial, well considered, report of the Hess Subcommittee will always be there to add strength to the Services' arguments.

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago — Fighter-bombers again destroyed a large number of enemy vehicles and roads in the Salerno area. Attacks were maintained by light bombers, while heavy and medium bombers again attacked important road points around Naples. A total of eight enemy aircraft were destroyed. It is now confirmed that a further five enemy aircraft were destroyed by medium bombers on 8 Sept.

50 Years Ago — Of the good work done by the Engineer Corps in the Philippines, the most important in immediate results, as well as far-reaching in its effects, is the construction of military roads and bridges. In the opinion of the commanding general they were of vital necessity to the solution of the Moro question.

90 Years Ago — The principal points demanding the attention of our war administrative departments now, and of our Senators and Representatives, at the next Congress, are: the proper separation and organization of the duties of the Secretary of War and the Commander-in-Chief; the withdrawal of the promotion and appointment of officers from all but military influence; the introduction of a regular system of promotion, by which each officer will find his military advancement entirely dependent upon his military skill, energy, and bravery.

"Pressure" Groups

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

With disillusionary interest I have watched with growing conviction while pressure groups, professional and commercial, selfishly organized and militantly implemented, seek to take away privileges granted the members of the Armed Forces. These privileges have had years-old acceptance so that they are part and parcel of compensation for their services to the Nation.

It is with fervent hope and prayerful appeal that the Congress will not "heel" to these selfishly induced plans. It should, rather, recognize what should be the inherent rights of members of our Armed Forces, and terminate the discriminating policies against these members, who, after all are defensive servants of the nation.

"ONE OF THE FADING OUTERS"

Army Uniforms

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Your mention in recent issues of the contemplated dress blues for enlisted personnel triggered my thoughts on the entire Army uniform setup. It is certainly difficult to understand the thinking behind the "authorization" of a blue dress uniform to be paid for by the soldier. If it is authorized, it should be issued; the Marine Corps seems able to afford proper "walking out" dress for its personnel.

Why can't or won't, the Army square away on this business of uniform and admit we don't have a decent uniform for garrison or street wear? All the talk about the "attractiveness" of the Service appears to miss the fact that an individual's desire for a lifelong occupation may be influenced, not to an inconsiderable degree, by what he will wear in pursuing this occupation. In a civilian occupation his choice of clothes is dictated mainly by his income and personal whim. In the Service he has no choice. I think it would be a decided inducement for career enlistments if the Army would offer—as issue—suitable clothing, in appearance and utility, for its enlisted personnel—male and female. Once a proper set of uniforms is available, on an issue basis, command channels must be forced to insure the correct wearing of the uniform.

The Army needs a complete "new look" for its uniforms. What other Service finds major, or complete, portions of its official clothing being worn by DPs, POWs, tramps, hoboes, etc., throughout the world. How can the Army expect a soldier to have pride in wearing a uniform that has been "dumped" all over the world as surplus clothing. This "new look" should consider cut as well as color and material and any new uniform designed should not be a poor copy of some other Services', or nations', uniform. I refer particularly to our adoption of the British battle jacket which was a full cut, sensible jacket for field or garrison wear. We eliminated the fullness and other desirable attributes and still attempted to utilize it for the original purpose, with no comfort to the wearer and no appeal to his pride.

Before we continue on a hit-or-miss uniform program I suggest that a high level committee be formed to produce a recommended family of uniforms and that prompt action be taken to implement the recommendations of the committee. In the meantime, we should halt the blue uniform for enlisted personnel, the grey-green experimental uniform, and other piece-meal uniform projects.

RCAF Tells of $400-Million Building Program as Canada-US Group Meets

Canada's vast $400,000,000 air facilities program, extending across the continent, is making good progress toward completion next year, Royal Canadian Air Force Headquarters at Ottawa said this week.

The announcement was made coincidental with the opening of meetings of the Regional Planning Committee of the Canada-United States Regional Planning Group on Monday, 14 Sept., at Quebec City.

This group is part of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and is charged with planning the defense of Canada and the United States within the scope of NATO. The Regional Planning Committee reports to the chiefs of staff committee of the Regional Planning Group which is composed of the service chiefs of staff of Canada and the United States.

Canadian Army Facilities

Facilities for these meetings are being provided by Headquarters, Eastern Quebec Area of the Canadian Army. The last meeting of the Canada-United States Regional Planning Committee was held in Toronto in May of this year.

Shortages of materials and other obstacles have set back certain individual parts of the RCAF construction program, but generally the whole construction effort is well up to or ahead of schedule the Ottawa announcement said.

Considered the backbone of the RCAF's expansion, the building program stretches across Canada and involves construction or expansion of both operational flying and training stations, supply and repair depots, command and station headquarters, radar stations, and many other projects.

A major item has been and is the lengthening of runways at stations already in operation, and at re-activated wartime stations to meet requirements of modern jet fighters and heavy transport aircraft. Majority of the wartime-built runways were required only to serve light training aircraft.

Look to Future

One of the big problems facing Air Force authorities and their consulting architects has been the task of devising structures which will not be outmoded in the near future, but yet which are not prohibitive in cost.

The problem has been met by dividing new construction into three types, according to the length of time and the degree to which it is felt the RCAF will require the use of the station or buildings concerned. Construction, therefore, runs from work of a permanent nature to construction of buildings designed for a life span of from five to ten years. Wherever possible, designs and plans allow for future expansion if necessary.

Among the most complicated items included in the building program are newly-designed hangars, being built at numerous airfields. Largest of the three standard types of hangars is the cantilever model to house the big aircraft of today and of the future.

115 by 40-mile Range

New bombing and gunnery ranges also account for a sizable part of the total building costs. These must be located in areas where increased firepower of modern fighters can be tested and practiced without interruption or fear of damage to persons or built-up areas.

One of the most notable of these is being built at Cold Lake, Alta., and the range will cover an area approximately 115 by 40 miles. Involving construction of an entirely new station, and expected to cost about 30 million dollars, this range is being carved out of scrub land 100 miles north of Lloydminster, Sask. It is one of the biggest single projects in the current program and when finished, will be one of the world's largest air training centers of its type. The range will be used for bombing and gunnery operations, and can also be used in connection with the development and evaluation of various forms of weapons, including air-to-air rockets.

Despite development of this range, the RCAF will still require bombing and gunnery ranges at other points for local use by both regular and reserve fighter squadrons.

The expansion of the RCAF's Air Materiel Command is emphasized by construction of two large supply depots at Downsview, Ont., and Namao, Alta. Each will cover close to 20 acres under one roof and will serve as supply points for Air Force units in eastern and western Canada. Ultimately, Air Materiel Bases will be located at these two points, incorporating repair depots and other services.

Radar Stations

New permanent radar stations now are in use, and account for another large part of the building cost total. Sites for these stations have been determined mainly by their place in the overall radar screen and often their inaccessibility has made much pre-construction work necessary. Roads have been laid in to the sites through virgin country, water systems from nearby lakes developed, power stations and transmission lines erected and many other services provided for these new outposts of defense.

The new flying training schools, located on the Prairies, have made their appearance on the sites of wartime training stations. Much of the wartime construction has been rehabilitated, but nevertheless substantial new construction work has been necessary. Most noticeable addition are the married quarters, which did not exist on wartime-built stations. In many cases, obsolete heating, water and electrical plants have been replaced with up-to-date equipment. Modern runway and airfield lighting has replaced the old flare-pot lighting used on many of the old airfields.

Numerous Department of Transport airfields across Canada are being overhauled for the RCAF to ensure that they can handle Service requirements. Some of these were used by TCA before it introduced heavy, long-range aircraft that rendered the fields inadequate. Runway construction is the major item at these points.

Atomic Artillery To U. S. Forces in Europe

WHEN negotiations for a decidedly doubtful peace are under way, it is a good thing to give occasional evidence of reserve strength, just as a reminder.

On this reasoning the Army announced on Tuesday the prospective dispatch to General Alfred M. Gruenther's forces in Europe of several battalions of field artillery equipped with the new 280-mm. gun, and trained in its use. First to go will be the 868th Field Artillery battalion (of three 2-gun batteries) presently at Fort Bragg. How many will follow, or on what schedule, is not stated. There is an inference that while this splendid new dual-purpose gun, heaviest of all our highly mobile types, is proved capable of using the atomic-shell, its initial equipment will be of conventional shells; transport of the nuclear weapon already tested out at Nevada Proving Ground would not require a great deal of time, and national policy with regard to location of all nuclear weapons continues to require total secrecy.

Gen. Gruenther

POTENTIAL ENEMIES in eastern Europe are welcome to draw their own conclusions about ammunition and, also, for the present, about General Gruenther's plans for deployment of the using-battalions in the European landscape. It will be recalled that even before General Gruenther's accession to Supreme Command, General Ridgway had initiated at Heidelberg a series of courses in tactics called for, offensively and defensively, by the new weapon. The courses, based upon our own recent exercise in Nevada, were opened to selected staff and field officers of the American forces overseas and also of the Allies among the Treaty forces under General Gruenther. Extremely little has been said to supplement the bare initial announcement, but Marshal Juin's recent remark that he would like to see a wider diffusion of knowledge about this field of warfare appears to have been made with discreet foreknowledge of the coming movement of the 280s, to help implement the training.

NATO's ATLANTIC AREA this past week has witnessed the opening of MARINER, the 1953 exercise in operations for control of the Eastern Atlantic, the North Sea, and the English Channel. It is spoken of as the largest international exercise ever held, and no disputant of that superlative term has yet shown up. For the geographical area reaches to the New World's shores from which American and Canadian surface elements of the Blue forces took off on Wednesday, and the exercise engages something like 500,000 men, and 1,000 planes, and thirty large vessels of the nine NATO nations involved. Admiral Lynde D. McCormick, SACLANT, General Alfred M. Gruenther, SACEUR, Admiral Sir John Edleston and Air Marshal Sir Alick Stevens are directors of the complicated exercise; Vice Admiral Thomas S. Combs commands the combined striking fleet.

With the grace and understanding which aided Chancellor Adenauer to his recent spectacular victory at the polls in West Germany, that resolute statesman immediately made overtures to his troubled French neighbors, to further the European Defense Community program. His first effort was to give assurance that France—if that nation's leaders can come to agreement on the vital issue—can support the EDC plus the European Army concept, with confidence that France can retain the European leadership which France longs for. The fact is, now that West Germany has so solidly supported Adenauer on the EDC issue, that France is almost compelled to go ahead with that enterprise if she is to have any hope of European hegemony. Wednesday's cabinet meeting in Paris appears to have come close to admitting it, for M. Bidault, the Foreign Minister, withdrew appreciably from his extreme nationalist position toward the wiser position of Vice Premier Paul Reynaud and his colleagues. It is a hard step for France's nationalists to take, but there is growing awareness that any other course will prove even more troublesome in time. It is likely that by the time this is published, a firm decision will be made at Quai d'Orsay; for the delegate to the 22 September meeting in Rome must be given clear instructions as to his official position with regard to the next step for Western Europe's political integration. Herr Adenauer's diplomacy did not stop at that point. He also formally proposed resumption of Franco-German discussions of the Saar problem, a prime handicap which some day must be removed. And he gave his further assurance, for Russia as well as France, that the aim of the European Army is not aggression but maintenance of peace. These are noteworthy calmants, and encouragers to orderly thinking by France in advance of the scheduled meeting (also arranged this week) between Premier Laniel and President Eisenhower at the White House in the near future.

MOSCOW'S SURPRISE for the week is the announcement of Nikita Khrushchev's accession to the important post of First Secretary to the Party (which is taken to mark him as No. 2 man in the Kremlin), coupled with his own denunciation of his nation's agricultural program of recent years. It would not have been safe for anybody else to denounce it, so staunchly had it been identified as the Party's own considered program. But even Moscow, after a generation of failure, is able to tell when the cattle population has dropped, rather than increased. There now seems to be in prospect a modified agricultural policy, not an abandonment of collectivization but a better division of profits with the farmers themselves, in an effort to stimulate them to more efficient methods. It is easy to remember Russia's hopeful acceptance of Lenin's "new economic policy" three decades ago. It led to large internal changes, mainly beneficial if only temporarily so, and Khrushchev's may be the precursor of large changes.

IT IS CHINA which announces new Russian endeavors in the orient. Mao Tse-tung proclaims that Russia has assured economic and technical assistance for the initiation or renovation of 91 "enterprises," in addition to 50 which now are under way. The "enterprises" are not identified, but they are presumed to include factories, major bridges, dams, and power plants for assisting Red China's creaking economy.

I Corps Korean Children's School Fund Oversubscribed by More Than 60 Per Cent

The I Corps Korean Children's School Fund has reached a final total of $41,242.73 in donations from individual soldiers of combat divisions, support and other Army units in I Corps area in Korea, it was announced by Lt. Gen. Bruce C. Clarke, I Corps Commander.

The sum raised by soldiers in I Corps area represents a more than 60 per cent oversubscription of an original goal of $25,000. The money will be used in constructing schools sorely needed in 13 war-ravaged communities in I Corps sector.

Seventh Division was the top contributor with $18,621.65; 25th Division, second, $7,706.63; 1st Marine Division, third, $3,369.25; 101st Korean Service Corps, $2, 777.78, fourth, and Headquarters I Corps, fifth, $1,316.17. More than two score organizations took part in the campaign.

One 15-classroom school has already been completed under the I Corps campaign. This structure, the Yangju Primary School, at Uijongbu, Korea, was formally dedicated at ceremonies 29 Aug.

The plans call for erection of schools in the following communities: Saengyon and Yoonjongni in the 1st ROK Division sector; Todangni, Chugyo-ri, and Chingwanan, 1st Marine Division area; Sinkokni and Uijongbu in Headquarters I Corps Area; Sinsan-ni and Chikchon-ni, 1st Commonwealth Division; Kwangjon-ni and Tokhyon-ni, 7th Infantry Division, and Iisan-ni, 1st Marine area.

MEMO*News And Gossip
For Journal Readers*

FAST SWEEPING BROOMS are in action in the offices of the individual Joint Chiefs of Staff. Key decisions are being made at a rapid clip. Many changes could be expected as a result of the normal situation when new men take over, but this time there's a new factor. The Army and Air Force Chiefs of Staff and the Navy CNO are serving under two year appointments instead of four. If they are to get things done while holding the top military post in their Services and make a name for themselves, they must do it quickly. Some contend that in this respect the two-year appointments are beneficial; others argue that some decisions may be taken too hurriedly.

BURNED IN THE PAST by Defense officials ducking out of responsibility, the Services will salute the forthright stand of Assistant Defense Secretary John A. Hannah when he was asked this week about the controversial new liquor sales regulation. The Michigan State president—his school is located in the dry town of East Lansing—said he approved the regulations, that he assumes responsibility, and that he will answer the criticism. It would have been easy for him to divert the complaint pressure to the Services.

ARMY TRANSPORTATION officers are hopeful permanent Chief of Transportation—it's a two-star job—will be named before the annual convention of the National Defense Transportation Assn. begins 11 Oct. at Louisville, Ky. Brig. Gen. Paul F. Yount has been Acting Transportation Chief since 30 April. The other Services will have higher-ranking transportation experts at the sessions.

THE AIRMEN I.Q. is headed for a rise. New Air Force policies permit bottom grade airmen who can't get ahead to get out voluntarily after only two years' service. Later it's expected many lower aptitude airmen will be released involuntarily. Then, with next February and June graduations of ROTC seniors, the Air Force enlisted ranks will be bolstered by college graduate airmen in the thousands. The other Services will protest if the qualitative distribution system gets out of line—particularly the Army which may find itself forced to enlist some of the men who couldn't make the grade in the Air Force.

NAVY'S DECISION to permit men from the fleet to enter the OCS program at Newport has paid off. The first group (48) was graduated this week after establishing a class record for high grades at the school. Next year's quota will be doubled.

THE ALL-SERVICE LDO STUDY, aimed at determining whether the Navy-Marine Corps limited duty officer categories should be extended to the Army and Air Force—or perhaps possibly replace warrant officers entirely—has been laid to rest, at least temporarily. It seems apparent now that the LDO inquiry will either be abandoned completely or remain inactive pending Congressional action on the long, long delayed Warrant Officer Bill, which reached Capitol Hill too late for action this year.

DESPITE THE NURSE SHORTAGE, the Air Force will lose 131 nurses in the next few months as a result of their being selected for forced separation to meet budgetary limitations. Fifteen chaplains were also selected by the RIF board.

SERVICE PX ADVOCATES fear that astute businessmen-critics may try a "back door" method during the next session of Congress to restrict PX sales. The PX opponents (in view of the Hess Committee report) don't figure to fare well before the Armed Services Committee. But, having seen what can be done by fiscal maneuvering—for example, the commissary restrictions—they are apt to put heavy pressure on the Appropriations Committee for an anti-PX rider to the defense budget. It's a stratagem that has worked numerous times in recent years to hurt the Services. Only hope if such an effort is made is that the Armed Services Committee will fight back and call a "point of order."

ON THE COMMISSARY FRONT, some of the large grocery chains, fearful of a public relations black eye, now are asking their lobbyists to take it easy in the campaign against the sale of groceries on military installations. Meantime, Service leaders remain hopeful Sec'y Wilson will issue liberal rules for continuing commissaries. He has such authority and may use it with broad strokes to protect morale.

PUBLIC DISPLAYS OF AFFECTION are off limits for Navy men who leave the carrier USS Yorktown for trips to Japanese cities. The sailors have been told, via an official ship's plan of the day, that "arm-in-arm strolling, 'necking' in public places, or similar acts of affection are prohibited."

AIRFORCE GEN. PROMOTIONS are in the offing. There are vacancies in each of the four grades. Latest tabulation shows the following one to four-star officers, with the budgetary ceilings for FY '54 in parentheses: General, 7 (9); Lt. Gen., 20 (23); Maj. Gen., 126 (152); and Brig. Gen., 209 (244).

WHEN GEN. BOLTE succeeds Gen. Hull, the Army will get an "older" officer as Vice Chief of Staff. The USAREUR CG, born 8 May 1895 is 18 days older than Gen. Hull. They received Regular commissions as second lieutenants of Infantry on the same day, 25 Oct. 1917. Gen. Bolte was promoted to first lt. simultaneously. Gen. Hull wasn't promoted until 23 Jan. 1918.

A PRECEDENCE MIX-UP occurred in a mimeographed list of dignitaries attending the Sea Wolf ceremonies. The name of Admiral Lynde D. McCormick, USN, Supreme Allied Commander Atlantic and Commander in Chief U. S. Atlantic Fleet, was placed second. First name was that of newly promoted Rear Adm. H. G. Rickover, USN, recognized as the world's foremost authority on nuclear propulsion of ships.

AEC COMMISSIONER Henry De Wolf Smyth utilized his brief remarks at the Groton ceremonies to stress that "basic scientific research must be unhurried and free . . . the most useful results in the long run," he observed, "may well come from the laboratories where immediate usefulness is not considered an important criterion." His calculated comment on such an occasion was interpreted by many observers as a reaction to allegations by top civilian Defense Department officials that too much money and effort has been expended by the Services on "pure" as contrasted to "applied" research.

OFFICERS

IF YOU'RE GOING OVERSEAS, OR IF YOU'RE ALREADY THERE you'll appreciate the benefits to be derived from United Services complete low-cost, non-profit insurance program exclusively for armed forces officers. Either commissioned or warrant officers are eligible. More than 150,000 now are enjoying the protection of this 31-year-old institution. Through USAA, insurance coverage at minimum cost on automobiles, household and personal effects is made available in Japan, Western Europe, Puerto Rico and the Philippines, as well as in the States. Claims are quickly settled, even in out-of-the-way places. USAA is an organization of commissioned and warrant officers who pool their funds for mutual protection. Over the years, this plan has resulted in consistently large savings for members. In 1952, over 130,000 officers shared in $3,200,000 dividends returned to USAA policyholders. You, too, can save through membership in the USAA.

"CHIEF SAY CALL BY NUMBER BEST WAY!"

CALLS GO THROUGH FASTER WHEN YOU
CALL BY NUMBER

You save time on out-of-town calls when you give the Long Distance operator the number you want.

So here's a helpful hint. Write down the out-of-town numbers you already know. If there's a new number you don't have—or an old one you may have forgotten—be sure to add it to the list when the operator gives it to you.

Would you like an attractive booklet for your telephone numbers? Just ask your local Bell Telephone Company.

LOADS AND UNLOADS ITSELF... NO SPECIAL EQUIPMENT NEEDED!

FREIGHT TAKES A BOXCAR...
NOT A PULLMAN!

At far-flung bases from Alaska,
Korea, and French Indo-China,
Fairchild C-119's are delivering cargoes that no other plane could unload in such tight spots. The "Flying Boxcar" was built to land on fields too rough for other planes
—at points where no freight-handling equipment exists. Designed specifically as a bulk cargo airplane, the C-119's twin boom provides ample clearance for trucks to back up to the wide-open doors and for vehicles to "roll out" on their own power, without use of cumbersome equipment and with a minimum of manpower and time. Here is a combat proven airplane . . . that loads and unloads itself . . . no special equipment needed!

EXCLUSIVE FEATURES FOR ADVANCE BASE OPERATIONS:

Increased payload • Better bulk Cargo Clearance and Distribution • Shorter Take-offs and Landings • Rough Field Landing Gear • Crew
Bail-Out Chute • Provision for External Fuel

NOW 24 hour TAPE RECORDING ...NON-STOP!

Records Every Word—TIMED TO THE MINUTE

Model D-24
Dual Channel

Erase the 24-hour tape in just 20 seconds — simply by rotating the reel in the SoundScriber Tape Demagnetizer!

NEW SoundScriber 24-hour Tape Recorder INVALUABLE for Monitoring all Communications

Continuous, uninterrupted, unattended magnetic tape recording for a full 24-hour day—with the time printed on the tape to indicate the exact minute of recording—that's the story of this new SoundScriber 24-Hour Tape Recorder, already proved in hundreds of military installations.

This new SoundScriber development is versatile, trouble-free, requires no attention during operation. It records a single channel, or dual channels simultaneously, from microphones, incoming lines, or a combination of both. Built-in speaker or accessory headphones allow instant "listening-in" while recording or playing back.

The 24-hour reel of tape, only seven inches in diameter, makes a complete, economical, permanent automatically timed record of a full day's communications... or is easily erased for repeated re-use. Longer recording periods, almost unlimited in time, can be attained through simple modifications.

SoundScriber's unique mechanical design operates at approximately 1/60 the speed of conventional tape recorders—assures longer life and minimum service attention.

Contained in a sturdy aluminum carrying case, the SoundScriber 24-Hour Recorder operates from standard electrical outlets. The chassis is easily removed for mounting in conventional 19" rack.

The 24-Hour Recorder meets JAN specifications. It is now available for immediate delivery to commercial and other users.

Impact of Korean War On Infantry Center

all our plans and schemes of maneuver are built. To focus attention on the need to properly evaluate and use terrain, The Infantry School now has revised the course in terrain appreciation and includes a terrain appreciation requirement in all field problems. In addition, we have evolved a special technique for realistically presenting terrain problems when they have to be conducted indoors as map exercises. The terrain is brought to the student through the medium of motion pictures, slides and photographs.

We make movies and still pictures of an area the student would see if he were in an observation post in the problem area, and of the terrain he would see on an actual ground or aerial reconnaissance. Then the student is given the problem situation in the classroom, accompanied by the showing of motion and still pictures, slides and panoramic views. In this way he can solve the requirement under circumstances closely parallel to those encountered on the ground.

Failure to Organize On An Objective After Capture:

Failure to reorganize promptly on an objective after its capture has been a repeated fault and has cost lives and unwarranted reverses. Too often the commander's orders failed to give specific instructions for this phase of an operation. He tended to plan his maneuver and support fires only up to the time of arrival on the objective. The enemy in most cases promptly executed a counterattack and consequently we frequently lost hard-won terrain. This fault, at least in part, can be charged to improper training habits. Too often, both in maneuvers and in unit training, the reorganization phase of our maneuvers and problems occurs about noon or 1700 hours—or when the umpires are tired, and the flag is waved or bugle blown, ending the problem. As a result, this vital phase of training receives nothing but lip service.

The Infantry School has always stressed the practical necessity for reorganizing quickly on a captured objective, but is now placing greater emphasis on the subject. We feel that field orders, especially at company, platoon and squad level, must contain specific instructions for the reorganization phase of any attack. And we make doubly sure that this phase is allowed enough time for proper treatment.

Night Operations:

From the start of the war in Korea, increased emphasis was placed on night operations throughout the Army. The predilection of the enemy for night attacks and infiltration pointed out two of our major weaknesses—the inability of the average soldier to fire with reasonable accuracy at night, and a tendency on the part of commanders to confine fighting to hours of daylight.

In addition to a greater emphasis on night operations, tests are now being made at The Infantry Center which we hope will develop firing techniques that can be used in low levels of illumination (quarter-moon or less). We feel very encouraged with the results of our preliminary tests and hope to develop a usable night firing technique in the near future.

Triangular Concept:

Korea has provided us with evidence that indicates too many of our leaders do not fully understand our triangular concept of organization and its tactical advantages. It has been found necessary to re-emphasize and define this concept and its relation to offensive combat.

Offensive combat is, of course, broken down into three broad phases: (1) The finding and fixing phase, (2) The fighting or maneuvering phase, and (3) The finishing or exploitation phase.

The triangular concept as applied to these phases of offensive combat provides a unit of like composition, plus a supporting element, to undertake each of the phases. This triangular organization provides each commander from platoon level on up the command ladder with three major fighting units capable of a wide variety of maneuvers.

We show our students how this flexible, sound, equally organized triangular unit is effectively employed to support our tactical concept and doctrines of offense. We also show that the components of this organization are readily interchangeable so as to provide battlefield flexibility with simplicity of control and command.

Patrols:

In the early phases of the Korean war many of our patrols failed to accomplish their missions. This was largely due to an improper use of the terrain and a lack of technique in moving to the objective. This, unfortunately, is much the same story we heard in World War II. It is not, in our opinion, entirely the fault of the patrol since the headquarters ordering the patrols failed, in many cases, to limit the operation to one simple mission and often did not allow sufficient time for planning, reconnaissance, briefing and rehearsal.

As in all other cases noted, these shortcomings are being overcome by more detailed treatment and more realistic training, with particular emphasis on night patrols.

Ranger Training:

Many discussions have taken place concerning the desirability of retaining Ranger Units in our Army. Currently the Ranger Unit concept has been abandoned in favor of spreading Ranger training over a broader segment of the Army. The Ranger Department of The Infantry School now conducts an "eight weeks course" for selected enlisted and junior commissioned leaders. This course could well be considered a post-graduate leadership school. It is the desire of the Army to have at least one noncommissioned officer and one junior officer in each rifle platoon who have completed this course. Graduates of this course are unanimous in their opinion that it provides some of the finest training they have ever received while in the service. Letters from our graduates who have served in Korea state emphatically that the Ranger training they received here paid tremendous dividends on the battlefield, and some individuals have even credited this training with saving their lives. A highly valuable byproduct of this course is that the graduates no longer have any fear of darkness or adverse terrain. They have learned to consider these two elements as friends and allies.

Technique of Individual Rifle Fire:

Studies made after World War II indicated that only about 15 per cent of our riflemen fired their weapon in an attack. This percentage has been raised to about 50 per cent in Korea. This rise indicates that new techniques and better leadership are paying off on the battlefield. The problem of increasing the volume and accuracy of the fire of the riflemen is one The Infantry School has under continuous study.

We are emphasizing the techniques of fire control, of fire discipline, of gaining and maintaining fire superiority, and the means of obtaining accurate as well as an increased volume of fire.

Fire Support Coordination Center:

The proper employment and application of the great variety of powerful weapons available to the Infantry commander just doesn't happen. It takes a well conceived plan, meticulously implemented, if the capabilities of this weapons team are to be properly exploited. This fire planning requires detailed, painstaking coordination. With proper organization, fire effectiveness is a prime example of what General George Patton was talking about when he pointed out the difference between haste and speed.

The need for more emphasis on the matter of fire support coordination was recognized early. Under the latest doctrine, fire support coordination includes tactical air, artillery, tank fires, antiaircraft artillery, etc., as well as the organic weapons of the Infantry regiment. The Fire Support Coordination Center is an agency of the commander at all levels. It is here that the representatives of all the fire support means available to the command work together to plan and coordinate fire support. This coordination is a command responsibility and the Fire Support Coordination Center is now located within or immediately adjacent to the command post of the supported unit, to facilitate control and supervision. The principles of fire support coordination set forth in Department of the Army Training Circular No. 9 are being implemented in the instruction at The Infantry School in order to show their application at all command levels—platoon to regimental combat team.

Emphasis is being placed upon training junior Infantry officers and noncommissioned officers in the adjustment of indirect fire so that effective fire can be placed upon targets of opportunity in the absence of a forward observer.

Haste vs. Speed:

In Korea as in World War II, what appears to be an American habit of confusing haste with speed has come to our attention. In an effort to accomplish a task as quickly as possible we often plunge headlong into an operation without thorough planning. Nowhere does this "haste" accrue greater disadvantage than in the use of Infantry. To add effectiveness to attack or defense and reduce friendly casualties, we must make sure all the fighting tools, men, weapons, supplies, and terrain perform as a team in a well laid plan. Everybody must get the "word." We teach that a commander must plan continuously to meet any emergency so as not to be surprised, and that it is better to spend three or four hours planning an attack that gains an objective in thirty minutes than to spend thirty minutes planning an attack that takes three or four hours, or days, to succeed, if it ever does.

From this brief resumé, it is obvious that The Infantry School, like the Infantrymen it trains, must stay flexible. Our search for new answers must be continuous. Our Infantry must be prepared to live up to its motto—"Follow Me."

Navy Schedules NROTC Exams

The Navy has announced that the eighth nation-wide competitive examination for its college training program, the Naval Reserve Officers' Training Corps, has been scheduled for 12 Dec. The date is final and examinations will not be given at any other time regardless of circumstances, the Navy said.

Successful candidates will participate in four years of college training with government assistance and will be commissioned as officers of the Navy or Marine Corps upon graduation.

Applications may be obtained at high schools, colleges, and Navy Recruiting Stations throughout the country. Completed applications must reach the Educational Testing Service in Princeton, N. J. by 21 Nov. 1953.

Regular AF Officers Can Ask Release

since appointment in the Regular Air Force; and

(b) Has no unfulfilled active service commitment resulting from a period of schooling or training at Government expense at a service school, a civilian institution, or the USAF Institute of Technology; and

(c) Has completed a total of 8 years' service or having completed less than 8 years' service, agrees to accept an indefinite term Reserve appointment coincident with his separation from the Regular Air Force.

(2) Reserve Officer:

(a) Has completed a total of 3 years of active Federal commissioned service, at least 2 years of which have been in his current tour of active duty; and

(b) Has no unfulfilled active service commitment resulting from either an agreement entered into while a member of the AFOTC; or a period of schooling or training at Government expense at a service school, a civilian institution, or the USAF Institute of Technology; and

(c) Has completed a total of 8 years' service.

(3) Air National Guard Officer—Officers of the Air National Guard of the United States are Reserve officers of the Air Force and are governed by the requirements set forth in (2) above for Reserve officers.

(4) USAF Officer (Without Component):

(a) Has completed 3 years of active military service under his current appointment; and

(b) Has no unfulfilled active duty commitment resulting from a period of schooling or training at Government expense at a service school, a civilian institution, or the USAF Institute of Technology.

e. Preparation and Forwarding of Resignation—

(1) A resignation tendered under this paragraph will be prepared in letter form as outlined in attachment 1 to this Regulation, and, except as indicated in (2) below, will be submitted to the officers' immediate commander who will accomplish the first indorsement in accordance with the format of attachment 5 to this Regulation and forward the resignation through channels to the commander exercising general court-martial jurisdiction over the officer. The commander exercising court-martial jurisdiction will forward the application direct to the Director of Military Personnel, Headquarters, USAF, Washington 25, D. C., furnishing an information copy of the indorsement and any other pertinent information to all other intermediate commanders. Indorsing commanders or their deputy commanders personally will recommend, by indorsement, approval or disapproval of the tender of resignation as they see fit. Any indorsement recommending disapproval will include a statement of the reasons therefor.

(2) An officer in the categories outlined in (1) and (2) above who tends his resignation for hardship reasons as outlined in b above, will submit his resignation direct to the Director of Military Personnel, Headquarters USAF, Washington 25, D. C., furnishing an information copy to the commander of the installation to which assigned or attached for processing. The officer will not be released for overseas movement or be returned to the overseas major air command pending final action on his tender of resignation. However, if such a resignation is disapproved, the officer may resubmit his resignation through the appropriate commander at the port if compelling new evidence warrants such action. The commander at the port is authorized to release the officer for overseas movement if, in his opinion, the new evidence does not warrant retention at the port. The commander also will forward the resignation direct to the Director of Military Personnel, Headquarters USAF, Washington 25, D. C., with comments on the officer's status and his reason for action taken.

f. Report of Physical Examination—A report of medical examination will accompany each tender of resignation. If the officer has attained the age of 40 years, the medical examination will include an electrocardiogram. A statement will be included in the forwarding indorsement that the officer has been physically cleared for separation by the base surgeon or flight surgeon. (See attachment 5 to this Regulation.)

Plastics & Paper Advisory Groups Consult With QMG

A meeting of the Army Quartermaster Corps industry advisory committee on plastic films and sheetings was held in the Office of the Quartermaster General, Washington, D. C., on 15 Sept.

Subjects for discussion included revisions of specifications covering film, flexible, vinyl; types of vinyl film most suitable for experimental rainwear; availability of vinyl sheetings in certain thicknesses for tentage and map case inserts; and revision of film and sheeting requirements covering plastic, polyethylene, molded and extruded shapes, sheets, and tubing.

Navy Graduates 608

Ensigns at Newport

The U. S. Naval School, Officer Candidate, at Newport, R. I., this week graduated 608 new Ensigns including 432 Line officers and 176 of the Supply, Engineering and Medical Service Corps.

Among the graduates were 48 former warrant officers and enlisted men, the first group to be selected from the fleet for OCS training. Honor man in this class was Ensign Ray A. Hobgood, former Chief Interior Communications man who had completed nearly nine years of active duty before accepting his commission. Ensign Gordon Friedel, former Radarman First Class, and Ensign John P. Hall, former Chief Sonarman, ranked second and third, respectively, in the class.

Vice Adm. James L. Holloway, Jr., Chief of Personnel, was the principal speaker at the graduation exercise. Discussing the Integration Program class, he said the group from the fleet next year will be doubled.

The 48 former warrant officers and enlisted men will rank from 5 June 1953. They are:

Col. Creighton W. Abrams, Jr., has been announced as Chief of Staff 1 Corps (Acting) in Korea. He succeeds Col. David C. Lewis of Coatesville, Pa., who departed for the States on 1 Aug.

Col. Robt. L. Cook has been announced as Assistant Chief of Staff G-1, I Corps, succeeding Col. Owen Elliot, who has been assigned to duty with Headquarters Armed Forces Far East.

Lt. Col. William J. Fabritius has been announced as Staff Finance Officer, I Corps. He succeeds Col. Richard S. Crowder, who has been assigned to the Inspector General Section 8th Army.

Half-Billion Cut-Back

In AF Engine Program

The Air Force has decided to cancel orders for several thousand piston and jet engines with savings estimated at between $400 and $500 million.

The action was announced at a press conference by Secretary of the Air Force Harold E. Talbott, with Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson sitting in on the session.

Secretary Talbott said the cutback would in no way delay the buildup of the Air Force. Mr. Wilson also stressed this point repeatedly.

They said the main reasons for the cutbacks are that jet engines are running lower than was expected before overhauls are necessary and that attrition rates are also down from earlier estimates.

Secretary Talbott said the Air Force has 600 B-47 Stratojet bombers and that the attrition rate is only about 1½ percent instead of the previously calculated rate of 10 to 15 percent.

The information concerning the number of B-47s and the attrition rate had heretofore not been made public by the Air Force.

Following is the complete text of an official statement released to reporters by Secretary Talbott:

"The Air Force will shortly cancel or reduce monthly production rates of a number of engines presently on order and will place order for more advanced models. Orders for new engines are required for our new fighters—the F-100, F-101, and F-105. Increased emphasis will also be placed on the development and production of turbo-prop engines. We are particularly interested in turbo-prop engines for our transport and tanker aircraft.

"The largest number of engines to be cancelled are the J-47 engines which power the B-47 bomber. The increased life expectancy of these engines lowers the Air Force requirement. We are also cancelling some of the older type jet and reciprocating engines.

"As in the aircraft procurement program, the new 1954 engine program originated in the Air Staff and changes in the program resulted from the following factors:

"(1) A much greater time between overhauls is now being realized from our jet engines. This greater time is a result of an accumulated know-how to operate jet engines, better manufacturing methods, improved design of our engines, and increased maintenance capability.

"(2) We have decreased our attrition rates. This reduction is due partially to the decrease in the flying hours program which, as you know, is the index of our peacetime training. Our accident rate has been gradually decreasing and we consequently have requirements for fewer engines.

"There was no mistake in the original jet engine orders. We had no experience factors on which to base either time between overhaul or life expectancy of our engines. Actual use, especially the accelerating factor resulting from the Korean hostilities, has now given us valid figures on which to base requirements. For instance, the use factors on the J-47 jet engine have more than doubled.

"This new engine program will not adversely affect the Air Force's capacity to equip 143 wings. Secondary sources, such as Packard, Studebaker, Nash, Buick, and Chevrolet, who are licensees and not prime engine manufacturers, may complete production of our engines sooner than was originally planned. Ford, presently a secondary source for the R-4360 reciprocating engine at the Air Force facility in Chicago, will become a second source for the J-57 engine on the completion of present contract. The prime engine manufacturers will continue at an adequate production rate on existing contracts and on new contracts involving later model jet and turbo engines. This necessarily results in a saving of several hundred millions of dollars."

RYUKYUAN COMMUNITY CHEST

U. S. Forces contributed $6,086 to the Ryukyuan Community Chest during the 1953 fund raising campaign on Okinawa. It was announced by the U. S. Civil Administration of the Ryukyu Islands.

The annual drive supports Ryukyuan charities. Funds contributed during the drive have been allocated by the Ryukyuan-American Welfare Council to the Okinawa Charity Hospital, the Koza Children's Home, the Airin-En Orphanage, Prisoner's Aid Society, Foster Homes Education Program, Leper's Aid Society, Widow's Home Industry Program, and the Okinawan Girl Scouts.

AF To Release Thousands After Half-Tour Service

Thousands of men who enlisted in the Air Force for four years will be able to get out voluntarily by 31 Dec. with only more than two years' service.

The Air Force has taken steps to release prematurely some 35,000 airmen whose tours of duty normally would expire in fiscal year 1955 and who do not want to reenlist.

Among those who can apply for quick release are basic airmen with two years' service as of 15 Sept. and airman third class (E-2) with three years' service by the same date.

The Air Force said that later, after the voluntary release program is completed, it may be necessary to release involuntarily some airmen who are "marginal producers and/or surplus."

The speed-up in the release of the 35,000 airmen is being implemented in order to level-off the Air Force manpower input and outgo for the current fiscal year and especially fiscal year 1955.

In the year beginning next July, the Air Force is due to lose about 180,000 airmen. It wants to get rid of thousands of these non-career personnel now and enlist men for four years as their replacements to reduce the "hump" forecast for next year.

Prior to this week's announcement, the Air Force was taking applications for voluntary release from airmen in non-critical categories who had three years' service.

The newly set two year requirement matches the obligated active duty of men who are brought into Service through Selective Service.

The following quotas were assigned to the various commands for the voluntary release of the 35,000 airmen:

Z. I. COMDS	QUOTAS

Promotion Chances Are Slight For Wave LCdrs.

A Regular Line Wave officer's chances of getting to be a commander in the Navy are extremely remote as compared with her male contemporary. THE JOURNAL has learned from a statistical study of Wave and male officer promotions.

Male officers going up for selection to commander have about eight chances in 10 of being promoted. Those going up for selection to captain have almost nine chances out of 10 of being selected.

One Chance In Two

Wave officers, on the other hand, have only one chance in two of being selected under present Bureau of Personnel policies which have been described by observers as "discriminatory."

The statistics on Wave and male promotions were brought to the attention of THE JOURNAL as the result of the Navy's recent decision not to hold a selection board for Wave lieutenant commanders during fiscal '54. As previously noted, the decision marked the third time in five years that the Navy has acted to prevent Wave promotions.

Observers also are questioning the legality of the Navy's failure to hold selection boards for Waves. They believe that it was the clear intent of the Women's Armed Services Integration Act that a board should be convened annually for each Wave grade—a provision which is written into law for male officers of the Navy.

In support of this view, observers point to Section 206(a) of the WASIA Act, which states: "The respective provisions of law now existing or hereafter enacted relating to the promotion by selection of line and staff officers of the Regular Navy not restricted in the performance of duty which are not inconsistent with the provisions of this title are hereby made applicable to women officers of the Regular Navy."

The Navy says that "The Chief of Personnel has seen no reason to ask for a legal opinion" to clear up the debate which surrounds this question.

Wave Program Too Young

In support of its decision not to promote Wave officers to commander (only six have been selected for promotion to that grade in the past five years), the Navy states that the women already are a year and one half ahead of their male contemporaries.

Observers claim, however, that the Wave program is still too young for the Navy to attempt to align Wave promotions with those of the males. They point out that the bulk of the male lieutenant commanders now being selected for promotion are 33-35 years old and many are only 32, whereas women officers who are eligible are considerably older.

The youngest Wave officer now eligible for consideration for promotion to commander is 37, and she is an extreme example. The remaining Waves who are eligible are 41-49 years of age, and a third of the group are in the 45-46 year bracket.

Capt. Varian To NavWarCol

Capt. Donald C. Varian, USN, recently selected for promotion to Rear Admiral, will report the latter part of this month to the Naval War College, Newport, R. I., to take the Flag Officers' Refresher Course. He currently is assigned as Chief of Staff, Commander Destroyer Force, Pacific Fleet.

MAJ. GEN. HENRY D. LINSKOTT, USMC commanding general, Camp Lejeune, N. C. congratulates Capt. B. E. Loos, captain of the Camp Lejeune Skeet team. The team presented four trophies to General Linscott, foremost of which was the huge trophy in the foreground symbolizing the team's victory in the National Service matches held at Reno, Nev. Also presented to the General were three trophies won at the Spartanburg Gun Club, Spartanburg, S. C.; Mount Airy, N. C.; and Savannah, Ga. Team members standing in rear from left to right are: CWO J. A. Martin, CWO D. L. Lawson, M/Sgt. V. R. Mull, M/Sgt. Frank Heidt and 1st Lt. Hank Stowers.

Integrate Dependent Schools By Fall '55 Is Service Order

The Armed Services are on notice by the semester beginning in the Fall of 1955, segregation must be abolished in all dependent schools on Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps installations in the United States.

This was emphasized at a press conference this week by Assistant Defense Secretary John A. Hannah.

Dr. Hannah, who is president of Michigan State College, said that steady progress is being made in integrating dependent schools. He pointed to Ft. Benning, Ga., as an example.

The Assistant Secretary explained that the 1955 deadline recognizes the fact that there are many complicating problems involved, including relationships with local school boards, State legislation, operation of facilities, etc.

Dr. Hannah said, however, that the 1955 goal has been established. "It will be adhered to," he added.

Retail Group Rally

retailers have never advocated the closing of exchanges as we emphasized to you in our letter of August 5.

"5. To say that the list of resale items proposed by retailing would destroy exchanges is ridiculous — the proposed list merely eliminates luxury and semi-luxury merchandise.

"6. No one can seriously maintain that 'many' merchants are 'unscrupulous characters' who mulct the serviceman of 'his small pay.'

"7. Retailing questions the premise that the serviceman and woman should not be expected to pay the same price as civilians.

"8. If the operation of exchanges were to be made to conform to the original dictates of the Congress to supply servicemen and women with 'items of small personal needs' and 'items of convenience and necessity,' retailing would have no objection to an 'appropriate pay readjustment' for personnel of the Armed Forces.

"9. There was absolutely no evidence and no showing by the Hess Subcommittee that retailing's investigators committed any unlawful act.

"We have noted other inconsistencies in the Subcommittee report; it is our intention to analyze all of these points in our forthcoming memorandum and will prove conclusively that the Armed Services exchanges, as they are now being operated, represent a completely unjustifiable type of government competition with private enterprise.

"Sincerely yours,
"ROWLAND JONES, JR."

Adm. Jelley To Direct Defense Construction

The Defense Department this week announced that Rear Adm. Joseph F. Jelley, jr., USN, will become Director of Construction in the office of Assistant Secretary of Defense (Properties and Installations) Franklin G. Floete.

The 49-year-old Civil Engineer Corps officer currently is serving as Chief of Navy's Bureau of Yards and Docks. The Defense Department said he will take over his new duties in December at the conclusion of his present four-year term as Bureau chief. He went to his present assignment on 1 Dec. 1949.

Rear Adm. Jelley

Gen. Goddard to Head Bulova Photo Division

General of the Army Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Board of the Bulova Research and Development Laboratories, Inc., a subsidiary of the Bulova Watch Company, announced this week that Brig. Gen. George W. Goddard, USAF-Ret., has been appointed head of the Laboratories' Military and Aerial Photographic Division.

General Goddard, who was director of Reconnaissance for the Allied Air Forces in Europe prior to his retirement last July, was a pioneer in aerial photography. In 1926, he invented special shutter and flash synchronizing equipment to take the world's first night aerial photograph. The first shutterless, slit-type flow three-dimensional camera was designed under his command as director of Research at Wright-Patterson AFB.

He also was a pioneer in aerial mapping. Under his direction, a record was set in 1934 when five aircraft, flying at 16,000 feet and spaced eight miles apart, photographed 35,000 miles of territory in Alaska in seven hours, 45 minutes.

General Bradley said he was proud to welcome General Goddard "to our Bulova research program to continue the trail-blazing work in photography that helped make our AF second to none."

SERVICE FAMILY NOTES

MRS. Matthew B. Ridgway, wife of General Ridgway, Chief of Staff of the Army, will make her first appearance at a Service wives' luncheon in the Washington area when she is guest of honor at the JANGO luncheon on Tuesday 22 Sept.

The first luncheon of the Fall season, it will be held at 12:30 P.M. at the Army-Navy Country Club with Mrs. J. Robert Ryan, President, presiding. Mrs. L. George Clarke, Jr., is in charge of the program and arrangements. Dr. George Sederer, counselor for the German Diplomatic Mission, will be the guest speaker.

A musical program will be offered JANGO members and their guests when Lloyd Lindroth, harp soloist, and Sgt. Oliver Kaler, accordionist, both of the Army Band, will each play. The Army Band string ensemble will furnish luncheon music.

Dedicate Cathedral Windows—

General Ridgway will deliver the chief address in the dedication to freedom of three windows to the Washington Cathedral tomorrow, Sunday 20 Sept. The Bishop of Washington, the Right Rev. Angus Dun will hallow the windows in the War Memorial Shrine, and accept them as part of the fabric of the building.

The windows depict the flag-raising of U. S. Marines on Mount Surabachi, the air strike by Torpedo Squadron 8 during the Battle of Midway, the death of four chaplains who gave their life-jackets to soldiers in the sinking of the Dorchester and other scenes in the Nation's struggle for freedom. The windows are the work of Boston stained-glass artists Reynolds, Francis and Rohnstock.

The ceremony will take place at the evensong service.

When in New York, General Ridgway was a vestryman in St. Bartholomew's Episcopal Church and during his term of duty as NATO Commander he was a supporter of the Episcopal Pro-Cathedral in Paris.

Adm. Gardner's Son to USMA—

The Deputy Chief of Naval Operations and Mrs. Matthias B. Gardner have just seen their son Bennett off to the U. S. Naval Academy after a month's leave at home, following a shake-down cruise to South America. Mrs. Gardner kept open-house for her son's classmates for the past several weeks.

Guests at "Topridge"—

Lt. Gen. and Mrs. Anthony McAuliffe have been guests the last few days of the former U. S. Ambassador to Moscow and Mrs. Joseph Davies at their Adirondacks place, "Topridge," where through the Summer they have entertained guests every ten days or so. General of the Army and Mrs. George C. Marshall preceded General and Mrs. McAuliffe at Topridge, whose season of Summer house parties closed last Sunday.

Mrs. Coleman in Washington—

Mrs. Willis Prague Coleman, widow of Colonel Coleman, has come to Washington, D. C. from Tampa for her annual visit with her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Jefferson Johnson, and a series of visits with old friends. She is at present with Mrs. Jane F. Waddington at 1510 33d St., N. W., after spending some time with Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Clarence L. Sturdevant in Silver Spring, Md.

MRS. WILLIAM H. LEACH, new president of the Scott Air Force Base Officers' Wives' Club and Mrs. Ross D. Norton, retiring president. Mrs. Leach will serve until March 1954.

Major General Lester J. Whitlock, Commanding General USARCIB, called the women the most single important factor of disaster control operations at the recent conclusion of Operation Jackpot 11.

In paying tribute to the wives, mothers and daughters of military personnel stationed in the Caribbean Command and the Canal Zone, the Joint Director of the exercise summed up the Distaff contribution to the successful culmination of Jackpot 11, the simulated atomic bombing of Miraflores Locks — near the Pacific entrance to the Panama Canal.

Since its inception, two years ago, Distaff has graduated over 2,700 women from an intensive 22-hour first aid course and other allied courses in Disaster Control work at all military installations on the Isthmus. More than 2,400 dependents in all have indicated their willingness to devote their free time to aid in disaster planning.

The simulated atomic destruction of the Locks was under the direction of the Joint Task Force for Disaster Control at Ft. Amador, composed of Army, Navy and Air Force officers stationed in the Canal Zone area.

Following a simulated atomic explosion the disaster workers, directed by the Army, Navy, Air Force Disaster Plan, went into action.

Composed of women first aid workers, stretcher bearers, decontamination teams and radiological teams, this "Automatic Wave," approximately 10% of the relief workers reported to four control points on the fringe of the disaster areas.

First the radiological monitoring teams breached the area, determining the amount of radiation and radioing back this information plus the number of "casualties" in their area.

Then, first aid workers rushed into the stricken area to bandage and treat the "wounded."

Other disaster control units, graves registration, fire fighters, heavy moving equipment then moved up to the control point for dispatch.

After the first aid workers had bandaged the casualties, the litter teams brought the most severely wounded from the contaminated areas. The decontamination teams went into action with their portable water sprays and changes of clothing. After decontamination, patients were loaded into buses, ambulances and private cars and carried to the treatment holding stations and hospitals.

Rapidity was the keynote of all operations.

Summing up his tribute to the Distaff side of Disaster Control, General Whitlock complimented all facets of relief operations.

Many dependents devoted free time to making bandages — and added insurance against disaster. Workers also attended child care training and guidance classes to operate child care centers to relieve mothers for actual work in their designated disaster areas.

The senior council composed of Mrs. H. L. McBride, President, Mrs. L. J. Whitlock, Mrs. R. C. Hood, Jr., Mrs. N. A. Costello and Mrs. A. M. Bledsoe guide Distaff procedures. Mrs. Hattie B. Marshall acts as the Distaff Coordinator and is a member of the Joint Task Force for Disaster Control at Ft. Amador.

General Whitlock said that USARCIB realizes that disaster control planning is essential not only for "A" Bombings but in future planning for all types of disaster relief. Joined this year for the first time by relief teams from the Republic of Panama and the Panama Canal Zone, Disaster Control planning will continue. Graduate first aid workers thoroughly trained in relief work, combined with the military planning and preparedness as evidenced by Jackpot 11, prepares the USARCIB and the Canal Zone for disaster.

The French veil with embroidered border, was brought by her father from France after World War II. The bride's bouquet was of orchids and stephanotis.

Mrs. Howard Leatham of Salt Lake City, sister of the groom, was matron of honor and Mr. Howard Leatham acted as best man; ushers were Capt. Robert Krivulka, Lt. John Byrnes and Lt. Charles Rush. At the reception, the wedding cake was cut with a sabre belonging to the bride's father.

Miss Keeler is a graduate of Washington State College and has a graduate degree from the College of Puget Sound. She held offices in Alpha Phi Sorority, and the swimming honorary.

The groom, a graduate of the University of Utah and the University of Utah Medical School, is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity.

After returning from a wedding trip to Lake Louise and Banff, they will reside at Madigan Army Hospital, Tacoma, Wash.

BANKE-OWENS — Mr. and Mrs. Harry Virden Bernard of Washington, announce the marriage of their daughter, Mrs. Leonora Bernard Owens to Lt. Col. Henry Halton Banke, jr., USA, son of

Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Banke of Buchanan, Mich. The wedding was held in St. Mary's Chapel of the Washington Cathedral, Washington, D. C., on 29 Aug. Canon Luther D. Miller, the former Chief of Army Chaplains, performed the ceremony.

Colonel Banke received his B.S. degree from Western Michigan College and attended Graduate School, University of Notre Dame. He was a member of Omega Delta Phi fraternity. From 1943 to 1945 he served in Europe and has since served as a White House Aide and as Assistant Executive Officer to the Chief of Ordnance in Washington. In the Autumn of 1952 he went to Korea where he has served until the present.

Mrs. Banke attended the Shanghai American School and Business College in Shanghai, China, and was a member of the Community Church there. She was an active member of the American players and participated in many of their productions. She was one of the originators of the "Cradle," and also served with the International Red Cross.

After a reception at the Bethesda, Md., Officers' Club, Colonel and Mrs. Banke departed on a wedding trip which included Virginia Beach, Va., Buchanan, Mich., and San Francisco, Calif., pending Colonel Banke's early return to Korea for completion of his tour of duty.

POLLOCK-URQUHART — Col. James R. Urquhart, USA-Ret., and Mrs. Urquhart announce the engagement of their daughter, Jane Anne Urquhart, to Mr. James MacKenzie Pollock, son of Mrs. James Watt Pollock and the late Mr. Pollock of Towners, N. Y.

Miss Urquhart attended the University of Syracuse, N. Y. For the last five years she has traveled extensively in Europe, where she was a U. S. Government employee in Paris, France, Heidelberg and Weisbaden, Germany.

Mr. Pollock is a graduate of Cornell University where he received his A.B. and L.L.B. degrees. He is a member of the Delta Sigma Phi social fraternity and the Phi Delta Phi law fraternity. During WWII, Mr. Pollock served with the Army in Europe as a Major in the 87th Infantry Division, 3d Army. He is now a partner in the law firm of Smith, Ranch and Mitchell in White Plains, N. Y.

After their marriage on 24 Oct. in the Jefferson Avenue Presbyterian Church, Detroit, Mich., the couple will make their home in White Plains.

JACKSON-BABCOCK — Col. and Mrs. John Francis Babcock of Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Margaret Ann, to 1st Lt. Francis Edward Jackson, USAF, son of Mrs. Mildred Jackson of Palm Springs, Calif.

Miss Babcock is a graduate of St. Mary's Academy, Alexandria, and attended Immaculate Junior College in Washington. The wedding will take place 4 Oct. at Maxwell.

LESTER-WELLS — Miss Barbara Ann Wells, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Jesse B. Wells of Ft. McPherson, Ga., became the bride of Mr. William M. Lester, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Lester of Augusta, Ga., at an evening ceremony at the Post Chapel, Ft. McPherson, on 11 Sept. Chaplain Julian S. Ellenberg officiated, while the associate minister, Mr. Edward Lee Willingham III of Greenville, N. C., assisted.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a portrait gown in imported hand-clipped Chantilly lace and tulle posed over satin. The bouffant skirt of lace featured a panel of pleated tulle flounces in the front and repeated in the back which formed a chapel sweep. Her veil was a face framing cap of Chantilly lace intricately embroidered with seed pearls to which was attached a four-tier veil of imported illusion. She carried a white prayer book featuring three white orchids and showers of stephanotis.

Miss Nancy Wells, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. The Misses Martha and Barbara Hill, Miss Patricia Molloy and Miss Margaret McNaul of Ft. McPherson were bridesmaids. The bride's book was kept by Miss Mary Adelia Morley. The two acolytes to light the candles and arrange the aisle cloth were the twins James and Gregory Benford.

■ CHERRY POINT, N. C. The powerful Quantico Marines ran into a literal buzz saw here Saturday night when the underdog Cherry Point Flyers turned the tables on them in one of the biggest upsets in the history of service football by fighting their way to a stunning 9-6 victory before a capacity crowd of an estimated 12,000 fans.

Paced by Ed Brandenburg, a 23-year-old quarterback from the University of Mississippi who played with the Parris Island Marines last year, Cherry Point, a two touchdown underdog, threw up a defense Quantico didn't penetrate until the dying minutes of the game.

All Cherry Point scoring was done in the second period when the Flyers amassed a safety, a touchdown and an extra point to give them a lead the floundering Quantico club couldn't overcome.

■ BROOKS AFB, TEX. Officers' Wives Club has elected new officers. They are Mesdames George Middleton, President; Ernest DeBlank, 1st Vice President; Robert Baumann, 2d Vice President; Paul Pantier, Recording Secretary; Frank Leese, Corresponding Secretary; John D. Connery, Treasurer; Joseph Rocklin, Assistant Treasurer.

Hostesses for the luncheon meeting last week were Mesdames Paul Pantier, Nowell Didear, Robert Torpey and Bernard Dick.

■ PHILADELPHIA, PA. With some 45 ladies eager to "get going" the Signal Corps Supply Agency Officers' Wives Club held its first meeting of the 1953-54 season on 11 Sept. Mrs. Edgar W. Allen, appointed chairman in June, due to the resignation of Mrs. John W. Bornholdt, presided at the business meeting. Mrs. Allen introduced and presented a corsage to the new honorary chairman, Mrs. James Stewart Willis, wife of the new Commanding General of the Agency, Brig. Gen. James Stewart Willis.

The 45 present at the luncheon were pleased to have as a visitor Miss Ester Back, sister of General George I. Back, Chief Signal Officer.

Credit for the lovely luncheon was given Mrs. Erwin Koss and Mrs. Herman Taylor, Hostesses, Mrs. William B. Latta, Flowers, and Mrs. Oliver K. Maxwell, Program.

■ FT. KNOX, KY. The Hunt Club conducted their first horse show since the war 4 Sept. at the post stables. The show, sponsored and arranged by a group of energetic, equestrian-minded youngsters with ages ranging from eight to 16, climaxed the summer activities and paved way for an active winter's hunting program.

The group has been under the tutelage of Maj. Paul M. Wilmert, Jr., Stable Officer. Trophies were presented by the Fort Knox schools and ribbons by the Fort Knox Thrift Shop.

Acting as Judge was Col. T. J. Johnson, Ret. Ringmaster was Lt. Col. Alex Lancaster. (Please turn to Next Page)

■ EGLIN AFB, FLA. "La Boutique," the Fall Fashion premiere was the highlight of the Officers' Wives Club September luncheon. Twenty glamorous models, wearing new autumn creations made this AFAC sponsored style show, under the supervision of Mrs. Leo E. Fielder, a huge success.

The stage was set as the interior of a French Boutique, with a shocking pink foil model, a bird in a gilded cage, and a Paris street scene for a background. Two ramps afforded all of the 450 members and guests a clear view of the attractive models and clothes.

Mrs. B. B. Brodien gave a running commentary on the ensembles worn by each model. The models included: Phyllis Woolsey, Dolores Hudson, Susie Mechling, Elizabeth Baker, Ruth Ann Bacon, Gloria Pinkston, Fran Holt, Betty Lyon, Bella Ralford, Helen McKean, Jean Quimby, Jayne Kohrman, Thelma Dent, Ruth Grimaldi, Marjorie Parrish, Mary Thrasher, Bernice Hill, Charlotte Kronauer, and Jean Santora.

Members of the luncheon committee assisting Mrs. Fielder were: Mrs. G. H. Snyder, Mrs. B. B. Brodien, Miss Susie Mechling, Mrs. Virgil E. Fleker, Mrs. Wm. G. Phillips, Mrs. R. R. Withers, Mrs. Relf A. Fenley, and Mrs. L. H. Bacon. The Officers' Wives Garden Club was responsible for the lovely floral arrangements decorating all the tables. Background music in the French theme was furnished by a combo from the Air Force Band.

All-Service Wives' Club 20 Miles From Any Facility Busy at San Clemente, Calif.

IN San Clemente, Calif., a newly formed Officers' Wives' Club proves that "the girls can stick together." The wife of any Armed Forces Officer on active duty, retired or deceased, or serving overseas is eligible for membership. Army, Navy and Marine wives are included in the membership which totals approximately 100.

San Clemente is located about 20 miles from the nearest service installations. Therefore, active participation in the base wives' clubs is difficult and still would not answer the need to get to know one's neighbors. A large percentage of the population of the city is composed of the military and an active interest in the welfare of the community is inherent.

When a small group of wives got together with the idea of organizing a wives' club, newspaper publicity, posters and "word of mouth" spread the idea. Within weeks after the inception of the plan a meeting was held to organize the group. About 67 wives met at the San Clemente Community Center in March 1953 and voted that a club be formed and called the San Clemente Officers' Wives' Club.

Temporary officers were elected and a committee appointed by the presiding chairman, Mrs. Charles Merman (USMC), to compose and submit for approval a set of by-laws. At the April meeting the by-laws were approved as submitted and a nominating committee appointed.

The May meeting brought about the election of Mrs. William E. Clemens, President (USMC); Mrs. John E. Rentsch, Vice President (USMC); Mrs. Albert Luggar, Secretary (USMC); Mrs. Edward Critchett, Treasurer (USMC); and Mrs. George R. Schroeder, Historian (USAR). Mrs. Rentsch moved to Camp Pendleton at the end of June and Mrs. F. David Ruth (USAR) was appointed by the board as new Vice President and Program Chairman.

The club's purpose is to promote closer relationship among officers' wives of the varied services in the San Clemente area and to take an active interest in the community. To this end a Welcoming Committee and a Community Service Committee were formed.

Welcoming Committee

Mrs. Harry Schmitz (USMC) was appointed chairman of the Welcoming Committee and a system set up whereby eligible newcomers to the community are contacted and invited to membership.

The Community Services Committee, headed by Mrs. Harry D. Carrubba (USMC), was established without a more definite plan in mind than to offer services to the community and to assist in the Navy Relief aid program. When the Chamber of Commerce was approached with this offer, it was suggested to Mrs. Carrubba that a servicemen's center project would be supported by the Chamber and other local organizations.

A contact was made with Col. J. M. Bathum of Special Services at Camp Pendleton, Oceanside, Calif. (USMC). He advised that $888 had been set aside for such an idea for San Clemente from the Pendleton Community Chest Fund. He also advised that $1,500 a year from the same fund would tentatively be guaranteed. The center would be patterned after one already in operation at Laguna Beach, which is also partly supported by a $1,500 yearly appropriation from Pendleton's Community Chest Fund.

Vote of Confidence

A vote of confidence was received when the first public meeting regarding the center was held in the Council Chambers of the City Hall on 3 Aug. The Mayor, Council, officers of various civic organizations, and interested persons all vowed support of the project. Mrs. Carrubba was made temporary chairman to organize such a center. The second meeting two weeks later brought about a plan to present to local organizational meetings the idea of establishment of the center and to enlist aid in the form of representatives from these groups to the "center" committee.

The need of baby sitters for members of the club posed a considerable problem, but was solved by the resourcefulness of Mrs. Robert Burrell (USNR), who composed a list of available and competent sitters. Through her efforts, many women can attend the meetings who otherwise would have found it impossible.

SALZBURG LADIES CLUB holds its first meeting of the season at the Kavalier Haus, Salzburg, Austria. Guest speaker was Lt. Gen. William H. Arnold, Commanding General, U. S. Forces in Austria. Photo shows members of the club before the meeting got underway. Left to right: Mrs. Carolyn Strode, wife of Lt. Col. Edward Strode, Public Information Officer, U. S. Alexander received the lovely centerpiece of red gladioli in a wicker basket.

■ FT. BELVOIR, VA. Fort Belvoir's 1953 U. S. Army Engineer football team and their wives were guests of Maj. Gen. Stanley L. Scott, commanding general, The Engineer Center, and Mrs. Scott, at a reception held in Quarters Number One 6 Sept.

Approximately 40 members of the Engineer pigskin squad with their wives attended the function. In addition, receiving the athletes and other Fort Belvoir high-ranking officers was Maj. Richard A. Lewis, Special Services Officer, The Engineer Center.

Coffee and tea were poured by several of the officers' wives, and a cake prepared by Sfc. John Koper was served to the guests. Mrs. Kingsley S. Andersson, wife of Colonel Andersson, commanding officer, the Engineer Replacement Training Center, assisted in cutting the cake.

■ FORT SLOCUM, N. Y. Col. James Barry Kraft, USA, Commanding Officer of Fort

Slocum was the Guest of Honor when the Officers' Wives Club held their first meeting of the season on 15 Sept.

Wives of men in the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines, attached to the Chaplain School, the Armed Forces Information School, and the Post Command of Fort Slocum, got together for their meeting and luncheon against a decor of festive Fall colors in the lounge of the Officers' Club Building.

Mrs. Thomas M. Binford, wife of Rear Adm. Thomas H. Binford, USN, Commandant of the Armed Forces Information School, remains as Honorary President for the new Club year, while the newly-elected officers, Mrs. Roue L. Hogan, President; Mrs. Raymond D. Wiley, Vice-president; Mrs. Don A. Williams, Treasurer; Mrs. Richard L. Allen, Recording Secretary; and Mrs. Patrick J. Shanley, Corresponding Secretary, assumed their duties.

The various committees are headed by Mrs. Heath Twichell, Welfare; Mrs. Henry E. Earthman, Hospitality; Mrs. Walter A. Huchausen, Girl Scouts; Mrs. Willard P. Kistler, Thrift Shop; Mrs. Myron K. Barrett, program; Mrs. Gordon W. Knapp, Brownies; Mrs. Arthur F. McConnell, Jr., Bridge; and Mrs. Richard H. Timmins, Nursery.

MATHER AFB, CALIF. Three hundred twenty-nine Mather officers' wives congregated at the Officers' Club recently for "Operation Ladies' Day," which included a tour of Mather's various components and the sections and offices where their husbands work.

The group was introduced to Col. Hugh McTague, Observer Training group commander, by program chairman Eva Scott.

Lecture Course Organized At Air Univ. For "Wives of Potential Commanders"

The roles of the three Services in the defense of the United States will be included in a lecture series to be offered at Maxwell AFB, Ala., for Air Force wives under the title of "A Course for the Wives of Potential Commanders."

The course is sponsored by the Officers' Wives' Clubs of Maxwell and Gunter Air Force Bases and will be presented with the endorsement of the Air University. The course was planned by Mrs. Laurence S. Kuter, honorary president of the Maxwell Officers' Wives' Club, as the result of numerous discussions with the wives of Air Force officers.

Based on Experience

Its purpose is to present in conveniently organized form much information which experience has shown to be especially useful to the wife of a commander.

"Maxwell offers a particularly fortunate opportunity to put the plan into action for the first time," Mrs. Kuter explained. "Many of the officers who come to Maxwell to attend the various schools are accompanied by their wives. We believe that while the wives are here it will be an opportune time to offer, for their convenience, the various lectures which have been incorporated into the course."

Mrs. Kuter said that the audience for the initial presentation will include the most complete cross-section of experience possible to assemble from among Maxwell and Gunter wives. When the initial presentation has been concluded, their suggestions will be sought to determine if the course can be improved in the subsequent presentations.

Army-Navy-Air Force

The roles of the three Services will be discussed by Col. Nicholas T. Perkins, deputy commandant for Evaluation, Air War College; Col. M. O. Perry of the Army Advisory Group, Air University, and Capt. Kenneth Craig of the Naval Advisory Group. Other speakers will discuss subjects ranging from the organization of NATO to the operations of hospitals, schools, and other services on air bases.

The first of the seven sessions of the course will be presented on 22 Sept. The lectures will conclude on 16 Oct. The course will be repeated at dates to be announced later.

Colonel McTague spoke concerning Mather's mission and how Mather fits into the Air Force picture.

Colonel McTague introduced Maj. Bernard Spiro, project officer for "Operation Ladies' Day," who outlined the agenda for the day.

A tour guide took over each of six groups. Tour guides were Capt. John H. Boys, James E. Deyo, Russell A. French, Charles G. Hart, Michael Nisos and Henri Tapie.

After three hours on the tour of Observer School and base activities, the wives returned to the Bamboo Room of the Officers' Club where they were served lunch to the music of the 724th Air Force Band. The day's program concluded with a brief address by the wing commander, Col. Sam Maddux, Jr.

Assisting with the project were the following officers, airmen and civilians who oriented the wives in various departments' work: Capt. J. H. ■ MAXWELL AFB, ALA. Hundreds of women have been meeting and greeting each other at the series of teas being given at her home by Mrs. Laurence S. Kuter, wife of the Commander of the Air University.

Quarters 337 is becoming a familiar place to many of the wives here at Maxwell, because Mrs. Kuter has asked the nominees for office in the Maxwell Wives Club to act as her assistant hostesses and the Advisory Council of the Club to assist at the punch tables at every one of the parties. Then she has also asked 'the senior wives in the special unit being entertained that particular day to assist in pouring.

The nominees are: Mrs. Robert I. Choate, Mrs. R. C. Weller, Mrs. James R. Williams, for President; Mrs. Howard E. Ferguson, Mrs. Jack Jenkins, Mrs. R. A. Toole, for First Vice President; Mrs. W. H. Frederick, Mrs. H. W. Patch, Mrs. J. W. Saunders, for Second Vice President; Mrs. John D. Crisp, Mrs. W. E. McMillan, Mrs. Steve C. Shay, for Recording Secretary; Mrs. Charles C. Harris, Mrs. Elbert Helton, Mrs. W. A. Williams, for Corresponding Secretary; Mrs. A. C. Carlson, Mrs. James Monroe, Mrs. C. G. Willis, for Treasurer.

These women greet Mrs. Kuter's guests and see that each one has an identifying name tag and invite them to go through the house if they choose.

Mrs. R. C. Wilson, Mrs. M. K. Dethelmann, Mrs. Lloyd P. Hopwood, Mrs. Frank Carroll, Mrs. Wilfred Paul, Mrs. Gordon Pratt, Mrs. Clinton Davies, Mrs. Dale Smith have assisted at all of the teas. Mrs. Henry Dittman and Mrs. Lyle Mann have also acted as assistant hostesses.

With the succession of these teas Mrs. Kuter will have entertained all of the wives of the Staff and Faculty from each of the organizations, and many of the students' wives who have already started to take an active part on committees in the Wives' Club. The units that have been included are Headquarters, Air University, R.S.I., Air Command and Staff School, H.R.R.I., MATS organizations, O.S.I., the 3800th Air University Wing, the Medical Group, Air Force R.O.T.C., the Air War College, Air University Library, the staff and faculty wives from Gunter, and the associate members of the Wives' Club.

release were almost 300 assigned to the Strategic Air Command. The Air Training Command and SAC suffered the heaviest forced attrition.

In response to inquiries, Air Force spokesmen said that force-outs include 11 colonels, 188 lieutenant colonels, 1016 majors, 2494 captains, 2108 first lieutenants, 625 second lieutenants and 150 warrant officers.

Almost 80 per cent of those named for involuntary separation only months ago had signed indefinite categories.

Of the 2178 pilots chosen for release involuntarily, 1003 were in the rank of captain.

U. S. COAST GUARD

A NEW threat to the medical care of Coast Guard families—already discriminated against in comparison with other Armed Forces families—has been raised.

The Bureau of the Budget has directed Secretary Oveta Culp Hobby of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to study continuation of the free medical and hospital program for merchant seamen. It was begun in 1798.

The hospitalization is accomplished in Public Health Service Hospitals, which are also used, when space is available, by Coast Guard families.

The Budget Bureau told Mrs. Hobby that in working up the 1955 budget of her department one assumption should be that the merchant seamen program may be eliminated.

Ominously, Mrs. Hobby stated that "the fact that there are, in all, some 25 groups who receive medical care under the law makes it apparent that any review of this medical care program cannot be limited to that part which concerns merchant seamen alone."

She stated that "funds are available for fiscal year 1954 and as long as statutory authority exists, it is clear that merchant seamen and other beneficiaries will continue to receive that care."

Coast Guard leaders had hoped that the Defense Department Commission on Dependent Care, headed by Dr. Harold G. Moulton, would have recommended use of Army, Navy and Air Force medical facilities on a space available basis by Coast Guard families.

The Committee, however, failed to make this recommendation and thereby apparently insured — unless Congress should take independent action—the continued discrimination against wives and children of Coast Guard officers and men.

The Moulton Commission's recommendations require legislation and it may very well be that if such a measure reaches Capitol Hill, Coast Guard leaders will be afforded an opportunity to state their case. In the past, a number of Congressmen have been sympathetic to the hardships being suffered by Coast Guard families who are unable to receive dependent care when there is no Public Health Service available. Also, it has been pointed out many Public Health Service hospitals are not staffed to care for medical needs of women and children.

"Dorn Cook Book" Gives General's Kitchen Artistry

Released this week and already reportedly selling at a sizzling pace is a new kind of "mess manual" written by an Army general.

It's "The Dorn Cook Book," 341 pages of top-notch recipes from around the world as prepared by Brig. Gen. Frank Dorn, Deputy Chief of Army Information.

Adding spice to the recipes are the author's own illustrations.

Published by Henry Regnery Co. of Chicago, "The Dorn Cook Book," which many literary and culinary critics believe is destined for best seller status, costs $4.95.

The book is a sparkling collection of recipes gathered and tested by General Dorn during his travels in Europe and the Orient.

Some of the recipes are original. Some are borrowed from great cooks the General has met in his travels and whose recipes he has tested.

Francis Parkinson Keyes, author of "Dinner at Antioch," says of General Dorn's book: "By far the most original and comprehensive cook book that I have ever seen."

He continues: "As a host, he is unsurpassed, not only because of his genial nature, but because his guests are privileged to share this enthusiasm and the result of this skill; now every reader of his cook book can, in a sense, become his guest."

General Dorn, who also writes fiction (his "Forest Twilight" was published in London) says he got his knack for cooking as a youngster on his father's ranch outside of San Francisco.

He's an artilleryman who gets top marks on the range—whether in the field or in the kitchen.

All-Service Draft

personnel who enlisted after 25 June 1950, will find it tough going to maintain strength on a voluntary basis.

That is unless the Defense Department gives them an O.K. to drop the term of enlistment from four years to three or even to two. Such an action is possible, but clearly it would deny the Navy and Air Force the strength in their argument for long-term tours.

Details are reported elsewhere in this issue of current steps being taken by the Air Force to get rid of the "non career motivated" personnel at a stepped-up clip.

Fact is, some airmen who were required to sign up for four years' service — same as the Selective Service tour.

The Air Force decision to speed the separation of thousands of its airmen will mean that enlistment quotas in the months ahead will be increased considerably.

Everything possible will be done by the Air Force to avoid peaks and valleys in its manpower program. One of the motivating factors for the all-out drive will be the realization that if enough volunteers are not signed up, the draft will be the only answer.

The Marine Corps, as has been reported in THE JOURNAL during recent months, has put strong pressures on its recruiters to enlist adequate numbers of men. Commanders also have received numerous communications from Headquarters as to steps which they should take to keep the reenlistment rate as high as possible.

Like the Air Force, the Marine Corps could find great difficulties in maintaining strength voluntarily.

The Navy is also certain to have a tougher recruiting problem as young men compare the Army two-year draft tour in a non-combat situation with a four-year Navy tour.

There is no question that in the months ahead Assistant Defense Secretary John A. Hannah will be hearing more and more from the individual Services regarding the desirability (Army and Selective Service viewpoint) and the threat (Navy and Air Force viewpoint) of across-the-board inductions.

Back to Sunday School

Sunday, 13 Sept., was observed at Maxwell AFB, Ala., as "Back to Sunday School" day by the Protestant chaplains' section. Service children, 500 strong, trooped back after an absence of several months.

Sunday School officials, on the advice of local health authorities, closed the Sunday School in June because of the polio scare in Montgomery.

Col. Carl H. Larson continues in his job as school superintendent, according to Chaplain (Maj.) John T. Evans, Sunday School chaplain. No assistant superintendent has been chosen.

An adult class, previously held in the Red Cross building, is being taught this year in Building 500 by Lt. Col. Charles Glaenger.

Classes in the following age groups are being held each Sunday in Building 500 at 9:30 a.m.:

Nursery, age 2, Mrs. John T. Evans, department head; Beginners, age 3 to 5, Mrs. David M. Singer; Primary, age 6 to 9, department head not yet named; and Junior and Intermediate, age 9 and up, M. Sgt. Harold K. Davies.

In outlining plans for the year, Chaplain Evans said that while the Sunday School could not offer a class for children under two, the Kiddie Keep, sponsored by the Officers Wives' Club, is open all Sunday morning.

Mrs. Wells was a member of the Army Nurse Corps in World War I, serving overseas. She was a member of the Ft. Lewis, Wash. Chapter of O.E.S.

Surviving are her husband, Maj. Ethan Wells, USA, Ret.; two sons, Frederick Wells of the Canal Zone, Panama, Capt. Russell Wells, USAF, now in North Africa; a brother, Allen Spinner, three sisters, Miss Pearl Spinner, Mrs. Hazel McKenzie and Mrs. Florence Schwalbach, all of Wisconsin, and six grandchildren.

Services were held in the Chapel at Ft. Lewis, Wash., with Chaplain A. C. Grove officiating, and burial was in the Ft. Lewis Cemetery.

Comdr. Myron J. Walker

Comdr. Myron J. Walker, who retired from active duty in 1945 after 30 years of service, died 2 Sept. in Iowa City, Ia., three days before he would have been 61 years old.

A 1915 graduate of the Naval Academy, Commander Walker completed Naval Aviation Training School in 1926. He saw service in both world wars and served aboard the first U. S. naval vessel to circumnavigate South America after the opening of the Panama Canal. He was the commanding officer who placed in commission the naval air station at Moffett Field, Calif.

He retired from service in 1936, but was recalled to duty in 1940 and served five more years before retiring again because of physical disability. During WW II, he was one of the pioneers in the development of De-aussing, which successfully combatted the magnetic mine.

He was mayor of Iowa City from 1937-39. Since his retirement, his only business has been the supervision of real estate holdings.

Capt. Wm. A. Maguire, ChC, USN-Ret.

The Rev. William Augustus Maguire, who was fleet chaplain of the United States Pacific Fleet on Pearl Harbor Day, and who is generally credited with originating the popular wartime phrase, "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition," died of a heart attack 13 Sept. in a London hotel room.

Army Navy Air Force Journal 19 September 1953

He entered the Navy during WW I and eventually attained the rank of Captain. He also served for a time as colonel on loan to the Marines before retiring from active duty in 1946.

Although Captain Maguire later denied ever having manned a gun during the Japanese attack, the incident which led to the popular slogan which later was used as a title for a hit song, he never outrightly denied having said, "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition." He said he couldn't recall having spoken the words, but it was possible he may have done so during the heat of battle. The Geneva Convention prohibits chaplains from using firearms.

Chaplaincy Described As "Strategic Opportunity"

The military chaplaincy is described as a "strategic opportunity for a spiritual ministry" in a special statement issued by eight Protestant seminary instructors following a conference in the Office of the Chief of Army Chaplains in the Pentagon.

The statement released this week by the Department of Army, declares:

"We feel a deep concern to develop in the coming generation of ministers and religious leaders a greater sense of obligation to our country. That there is a crisis is generally recognized; that this crisis is fundamentally ideological and spiritual must also be emphasized. Since there is every possibility that this situation will continue, even to the threat of further warfare, we, as ministers, feel the concern of American parents for an adequate spiritual ministry to the men and women in the Armed Forces, as well as to the families of military personnel. . . .

"We respectfully suggest to Protestant seminaries, ministerial students and pastors:

"1. That the military chaplaincy be considered as a strategic opportunity for a spiritual ministry;

"2. That a pastor's responsibility to serve military personnel and their families receive renewed emphasis;

"3. That earnest consideration be given to the initiation of courses of orientation for prospective chaplains by qualified and experienced instructors in our seminaries;

"4. And that we affirm to our Nation our complete dependence upon God as revealed in the Person and work of our Lord Jesus Christ."

Those attending the conference were:

The Rev. Taylor C. Smith, Southern Baptist Seminary, Louisville, Ky.; the Rev. S. E. Anderson, Northern Baptist Seminary, Chicago; the Rev. Jack W. Manning, Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, Berkeley, Calif.; the Rev. William S. LaSor, Fuller Theological Seminary, Pasadena, Calif.; the Rev. William T. Paden, The Theological Seminary, University of Dubuque, Iowa; the Rev. Raymond O. Feather, School of Religious Education, Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, Ft. Worth, Tex.; the Rev. George S. Hixson, Central Baptist Theological Seminary, Kansas City, Kans., and the Rev. Rudolf A. Renfer, Dallas Theological Seminary, Dallas, Tex.

GMC Gets M-48 Award, Truck Contract Split

Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens announced on 11 Sept. his decision to award a contract for approximately $200,000,000 (M) worth of M48 medium gun tanks to the Fisher Body Division of General Motors Corporation.

At the same time, Mr. Stevens disclosed that contracts had been awarded to General Motors Corporation and Reo Motors Corporation for approximately $146,000,000 (M) worth of two and one-half ton trucks. GMC received a contract for approximately $85,000,000 (M) worth of trucks while Reo was given a contract involving approximately $61,000,000 (M).

The General Motors bid on the M48 tanks was approximately 12 per cent lower than the quotation by the Chrysler Corporation for production of the armored vehicles.

"Public Interest"

"In making this decision, I have conferred with Assistant Secretary Slezak, in charge of Materiel, and with representatives of the Ordnance Corps and the supply division of the Army staff," Mr. Stevens said. "After carefully weighing all of the factors, I decided upon the award as being clearly in the public interest."

Both the Chrysler and General Motors Corporations now are manufacturing the medium gun tank. The Chrysler Corporation will continue to build the M48 at its Newark, Del., tank plant until April 1954. When production there is discontinued, the company will maintain its machine tools in package storage adjacent to the plant in order that it may resume production quickly if necessary.

Chrysler will continue to be the vehicle design agency for the M48 tank under separate contract.

Three other plans now are making other models of tanks and are not affected by the new contracts.

Numbers Not Disclosed

Numbers of tanks and trucks involved in the new contracts were not disclosed for security reasons. However, Mr. Stevens revealed that the tanks and trucks would be built under the new contracts over a period of more than one year.

Bids by GMC and Reo for production of the presently required quantities of two and one-half ton trucks to be bought by the Army during the period were almost equal, with Reo slightly higher than GMC.

Both companies already were producing two and one-half ton trucks for the Army and, as a result of the small difference between the bids, it was decided to keep both in active production to maintain a broader production base at reduced delivery rates.

Under present requirement schedules, GMC and Reo will be the only producers of the two and one-half ton trucks for the Army during the contract period.

Lockheed to Build XF-104

Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, Burbank, Calif., has received an Air Force contract to build prototypes of the XF-104, an air superiority fighter, it was announced this week.

The XF-104 will be a piloted jet airplane. Other details have not been disclosed.

Joins Textile Firm

Fred Walker, senior purchasing agent of cotton and synthetic textiles with the Armed Services Textile and Apparel Procurement Agency, has resigned from government service to join Robbins Mills as manager of their Government Sales Department in New York City.

Mr. Walker served in the Air Force for two years during WWII.

Sign Passenger Contract

The Military Sea Transportation Service has contracted with the Alaska Steamship Co. to transport passengers sponsored by the Department of Defense between Seattle and Alaska.

A total of approximately 510 northbound and 790 southbound spaces have been contracted for on weekly sailings during the contract period beginning in late September and extending through November 1953.

Services and Industry Join in Packaging Exhibit

An exhibit and seminar on military packaging and new packaging techniques featuring cost reductions, will be conducted by the National Security Industrial Association in conjunction with its Tenth Annual meeting and dinner, 30 Sept., in the Waldorf-Astoria, New York City.

The exhibit will include displays developed by the Army, Navy and Air Force, and by Douglas Aircraft Company, General Dynamics Corporation, General Electric Company, General Motors Corporation, Radio Corporation of America, and Sperry Gyroscope Company.

The military exhibits are being designed to illustrate the military need, while the industry exhibits will feature weight and cost savings, the packaging of intricate pieces and odd shapes, shock-proof and climate-proof packaging, and successful programs of Military-Industry cooperation which have reduced packaging costs.

Presiding at the meeting will be Mr. M. K. Miller, President, Miller-Carron, Inc., and Chairman of the Packaging Advisory Committee. Invited speakers are: Col. W. W. Milner, USA, "The Insurance Aspects of Military Packaging"; Capt. C. A. Blick, USN, Assistant Chief of Naval Materiel, "Reduction of Losses by Good Packaging"; Col. R. L. Mason, USAF, Air Materiel Command, "The Effect of Uncertainties as to Time and Place of Use"; and Mr. Nathan Brodsky, Deputy for Cataloging and Standardization, Office of the Secretary of Defense, "The Packaging Program of the Department of Defense."

FIRST SHOWING of the world's largest transport helicopter, the Air Force YH-19 Transporter, capable of carrying 40 troops, 32 litter patients, or three jeeps. It was designed and built under the auspices of the Air Research and Development Command by Piasecki Helicopter Corp. The fuselage is nearly 78 feet long; with rotors turning the over-all length is 134 feet and height 25 feet. It is powered by two Pratt & Whitney R-2180 reciprocating engines. The second version, YH-16A, will have two Allison T-38 type shaft turbines. Flight tests will start as soon as present ground tests are completed at the Piasecki plant at Morton, Pa.

Vice Adm. J. B. Moss Joins Air Firm as Consultant

Vice Admiral John B. Moss, USN (Ret.), has joined Bell Aircraft Corporation, Buffalo, N. Y., in a consulting capacity on a corporate-wide basis.

President Lawrence D. Bell, in announcing the appointment of Admiral Moss, said he will function between the company's Niagara Frontier Division in Buffalo and the Texas Division in Fort Worth.

Admiral Moss' most recent military assignment was as assistant chief of the Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics from March 1951 until his retirement, 31 Aug. 1953.

Admiral Moss, whose naval career began in 1919 when he entered Annapolis, became a Navy pilot as early as 1925 and since has flown almost every naval aircraft in operational use.

The new Bell executive served in the Pacific from May 1943 to July 1946, with the exception of four months as commanding officer of a Fleet Air Wing based in San Diego, Calif.

Admiral Moss was born in New York City, January 25, 1901. He is married and has a son and a daughter. His home is in Washington, D. C.

5-MILLIONTH CARGO TON

The 5,000,000th ton of cargo to pass through the New York Port of Embarkation since the first of this year, was observed last week at the Staten Island Terminal by Brig. Gen. Calvin DeWitt, Jr., NYPE Commander, and Staff Officers. The cargo, an M-4 tank, was slated for shipment overseas under the Mutual Defense Assistance Program.

On hand for the event were: Col. I. W. Littell, Deputy Port Commander, Col. S. F. Hyde, Chief of the Terminal Operations Division, Col. J. W. Higgins, Chief, Cargo Traffic Division, and Lt. Col. L. B. Santerre, Officer in Charge of Operations at Staten Island Terminal.

Navy Unveils New System

A new design system and method of automatic electronic mechanized production was revealed by the Navy Department and the National Bureau of Standards on 17 Sept.

The new system employs a building-block technique which, the Navy said, "will speed up manufacture, reduce cost and simplify maintenance of electronics components." Machinery utilizing the system has been installed in a pilot plant in the Washington area.

Adm. Giles Joins Koppers As Development Engineer

Rear Adm. Donald T. Giles, USN (Ret.), has joined the staff of Koppers Company, Inc., Pittsburgh, Pa., in the capacity of development engineer, it was announced this week by W. P. Arnold, Vice President and General Manager of the Wood Preserving Division.

Admiral Giles, who is a U. S. Naval Academy graduate with 35 years' service, brings a comprehensive background of engineering to his new post, and will operate out of Atlanta, Ga., where he has just completed his active duty with the Navy.

Before retiring, Admiral Giles served as Supervising Inspector of Naval Material for an area covering seven Southeastern states, with headquarters in Atlanta.

"ROTOCRAFT"

The Air Transportation Association Committee on Helicopters has voted to change its name to ATA Committee on Rotocraft.

The change was made because the Committee felt it should broaden its names as it intended to study future developments in connection with convertiplanes as well as helicopters.

At its meeting in Washington last week after discussion on airworthiness, transport helicopter specifications and performance, helicopter requirements, operations costs and traffic potential, the committee set up subcommittees to make reports on each of these subjects.

RA Lt. Col. Resigns; Quits Chemical Corps Post

Lt. Col. Carl A. Steidtmann, Chemical Corps, USA, resigned his commission in the Regular Army effective 16 Sept. to accept a position with Shwayder Brothers in Detroit, Mich.

Shwayder Brothers manufacture Samsonite luggage and Samson folding furniture in plants in Denver, Detroit and Pittsburgh. Colonel Steidtmann will be the Director of Manufacturing.

Colonel Steidtmann is a graduate of the Virginia Military Institute, Class of 1933. For the past three years he was Chief, Industrial Division, Chemical Corps Materiel Command in Baltimore.

WAC Re-Up Rule

Enlisted members of the Women's Army Corps are offered the opportunity to re-enlist for assignment in the Army area or installation of their choice.

Designed to encourage Army careers for women, provisions of new regulations are in keeping with options offered last summer to male re-enlistees. Choice of the area of assignment is dependent on re-enlistment in the Regular Army within 90 days of discharge and the existence of a vacancy in the proper grade and job specialty.

In such cases, enlisted women will be permitted to request assignment at any Army installation where a WAC unit is located, in any Army area in the United States, in the Military District of Washington, and, when they are qualified for overseas duty, in the Far East, Europe, or the Caribbean.

Army G-3 Employee Retires

After 45 Yrs. Service

Mr. Julian P. Green, administrative assistant in the Office of the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3, has retired after 45 years' continuous service with the Department of the Army.

Mr. Green, who transferred to the War Department in December 1908 after four months' service with the Department of Commerce and Labor, was honored upon his retirement by a scroll of appreciation signed by President Dwight D. Eisenhower, General of the Army Omar N. Bradley, General Matthew B. Ridgway, Chief of Staff of the Army; General John E. Hull, Vice Chief of Staff, and Maj. Gen. C. D. Volunteers for Ground Observer Corps Asked President Eisenhower has called upon American men and women to volunteer for the Ground Observer Corps for service as plane-spotters.

In a special endorsement of the project, the President said:

"The potential of modern military offense is such that a surprise raid against this country could cause tremendous casualties.

"Our military defense is aware of this possibility. Air Force interceptor planes and Army anti-aircraft batteries are designed to repel such an attack.

"But — if that attack ever comes — warning must come through in time! Citizen volunteer plane-spotters — ground observers — play a vital role in providing the necessary warning.

"Already some 300,000 civilian Americans are contributing to the job of guarding our ramparts. I salute these Ground Observers for their patience, their perseverance, their patriotism.

"But the job calls for twice their number to man these vital posts. Will you serve your country for two hours a week?"

Volunteers should get in touch with their local Civil Defense Director.

Navy Building Program Totals 165 Vessels

One of the smallest Navy shipbuilding programs in several years was announced this week. It includes the third Forrestal-class carrier and three other major ships (all destroyers).

In addition, the 1954 shipbuilding program will include two escort vessels, four minesweepers, one mine hunter, two ammunition ships, two landing ships and 150 landing craft.

All of these will be built in private shipyards, Secretary of the Navy Robert B. Anderson said. He noted that "a healthy private shipbuilding industry is essential to the national security" and expressed concern with "the present low level of activity in American private yards."

The Navy said all qualified U. S. shipyards will be invited to submit competitive proposals for the new construction work. The third CVA will be constructed "in a qualified East Coast private shipyard."

At the same time several conversions also were announced. They include the USS Midway, which will be converted at the Puget Sound Naval Shipyard, Bremerton, Wash., at a cost of $57 to $61 million.

Six escort vessels and one radar picket escort vessel also have been assigned to Naval shipyards for conversion. Three will go to the Boston Naval Shipyard, two to the Philadelphia Naval Shipyard and one to the Charleston Naval Shipyard.

Secretary Anderson said a new attack submarine and an attack cargo ship will be announced at a later date.

Cavalrymen Return to Ft. Bliss

Cavalrymen who once stabled their horses in areas now occupied by anti-aircraft artillery and guided missiles at Ft. Bliss, Tex., returned to hold a memorial service for departed comrades during the Sixth Annual Reunion of the 1st Cavalry Division at El Paso, Tex., 4-5-6 Sept. Among the visitors were Maj. Gen. Innis P. Swift, Ret., and Maj. Gen. Hobart R. Gay.

Memorial services for fallen and departed comrades were held at the Memorial Circle at Fort Bliss, where a handsome plaque set into the base of the flagpole is dedicated to the 1st Cavalry Division.

Maj. Gen. S. R. Mickelsen, Fort Bliss Commander, welcomed the Cavalrymen in a brief address.

Dinner was served to the Cavalrymen in a messhall of the post's new troop housing area.

A technicolor picture, "Here Comes the Cavalry," showing Fort Bliss troops, was presented in the Post Theater by courtesy of Warner Bros., as the opening event of the afternoon. This was followed by an illustrated lecture on "Heraldry" by Mrs. Gladys Dorcy.

A polo game — favorite sport of the Cavalry — was played later on Armstrong Polo Field. A barbecue after the game closed the day's activities for the visiting Cavalrymen at their old station.

Gilfillan Radar Traffic Control Saves Airlines $100,000 in One Month's Operation at Chicago's Busy Midway Airport

Formerly, aircraft flew over airport for orientation, circled in to landing beam—a system resulting in aircraft "stacking," delays. Today, Gilfillan Radar guides aircraft direct from 30 miles out to touchdown.

"Delays in landing air liners at Midway airport in bad weather have been virtually eliminated thru the extended use of radar aids by the airport's air traffic controller team, often cited as best in the nation," writes Wayne Thomis, Aviation Editor of the Chicago Tribune.

In December, 1952, without radar control, aircraft lost 283 hours 58 minutes flight time milling over radio "holding points." In January, 1953, with radar traffic control, "holding time" was reduced to 4 hours 26 minutes. Weather conditions during the two months were almost exactly comparable.

"As a result," writes Mr. Thomis, "airlines saved $100,000 in this one month; increased schedule reliability and passenger satisfaction; increased safety in Chicago's high density traffic."

Today, incoming aircraft are picked up by Gilfillan Air Surveillance Radar (ASR-1) 30 miles out, guided to final approach gate. There, Gilfillan GCA Radar (PAR-1) takes over, guides or monitors final approach.

During several peak traffic periods, a new record for civil airports was set by landing as many as 10 aircraft in a 15-minute period.

Bob Ziegler, Chicago District CAA Supervisor, commented that combined use of Gilfillan ASR-1 and PAR-1, for traffic control as well as landings, increased safety by pinpointing aircraft position in a 30-mile radius and achieving positive 3-mile separation between aircraft. Gilfillan Radar also allows PPI landings on any runway at the airport. The PPI landing was also pioneered at Chicago.

Credit goes to CAA, the Midway Traffic Controller Team and the Airline Pilots who participated in the six months experimental period that perfected radar traffic control at this busy airport.
